Four Hurt On SeMo Highways

Two traffic accidents Wednesday resulted in minor injuries to four persons on area roads, according to the highway patrol.

At the junction of Highway 60 and Brown Spur Road near Sikeston at 1 p.m., a two-ton truck driven by Wilfred Ressel, 49, of Cape Girardeau failed to yield the right of way and pulled into the path of a two-ton truck driven by Randell Barham, 37, of Bolivar.

Ressel received minor injuries but was not hospitalized. Barham was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston for treatment of face and head cuts. A passenger in the Barham truck, Donald Hinkle, 33, of Bolivar, sustained cuts and a possible fractured jaw and was also treated at MDCH.

A two-vehicle accident at 5 p.m. in Portageville at the corner of Fifth and Hoffman Streets resulted in minor injuries to Janet Harris, 16, who received cuts and minor bruises, and Audrey Harris, 9, who sustained face cuts. Both were taken to Pemiscot County Hospital in Hayti for treatment.

The accident occurred when the Harris car failed to stop at a stop sign and drove into the path of a pickup truck driven by James Blowers, 26, of Portageville.

For New Expenditure Plan

Extra $500,000 Needed

The city will need an additional $500,000 a year income if all proposals included in the expenditure-revenue study are adopted, City Manager Jim Huff told the Lions Club Wednesday.

The study, now being reviewed by the planning zoning commission, is an attempt to spell out what it needed in the city, and how the necessary funds can be made available.

Revenus sharing will bring in nearly $200,000 of the needed funds, Huff said. The revenue sharing bill has been passed by Congress and will soon be signed by President Richard Nixon.

Total fund sources for the city through taxes, fee increases and licenses are more than $700,000.

If the revenue-expenditure program were adopted, the city would need an additional $293,000 a year in operating funds and—$1.5 million for capital expenditures. The capital expenditures would mean annual payments of $126,000 in interest and $109,000 for costs not financed by bonds, Huff said.

The planning and zoning commission is listing proposals in the order of their importance. Price tags will be placed on each proposal. Then the city will decide what it wants and what it can afford.

The study covers public safety, recreation facilities and programs,—roadways and and sanitation.

Scouting Serves 686 Girls In Sikeston Area

Cotton Boll Area Girl Scout Council has been allocated $8,000 from the Sikeston United Fund goal of $46, 347.

The Cotton Boll, which operates in nine counties, has a budget of $42,762.07 for 1973, and is asking for a quota of $42,900 from United Fund drives in each town in the area.

The nine counties in the Cotton Boll Council are Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid, Stoddard, Pemiscot, Dunkling, Butler, Ripley and Carter.

A breakdown of the budget includes:

Salaries- three professional workers and one clerical worker, $26,287;

Staff compensations—Social Security, retirement, group medical and life insurance, $3,419.

Bookkeeping and tax services— annual audit, $1,310; office supplies—$600; telephone— $700; commercial printing— $400; postage—$800.

Transportation for professional staff— $800; council- owned auto upkeep and one- third trade—$1,600.

Promotional supplies—$1,000; training— $450; program— $830; conference and course attendance for volunteers and professional workers—$1,000.

There are 3,504 girls in scouting in the Cotton Boll Council with Sikeston having one- fifth of the total membership.

Sikeston has 31 troops with a total of 686 girls in scouting. This means that scouting reaches an estimated one of every three girls between the ages of seven and 17 in Sikeston.

When the United Fund goal is not reached in each town, the council must have other means of meeting its budget.

Additional revenue is provided through sustaining memberships. A sustaining member of the Cotton Boll Council contributes a special gift of $100 or more. Eighty-four individuals or firms are currently enrolled in this program.

The council board of directors reserves the right of sustaining membership enrollment to bridge the gap between actual needs and a rightful and just portion of the council budget as determined by the Girl Scout finance committee.

The council also receives financing through a trust fund.

Miss Ilena Aslin is executive director of the Cotton Boll Council with offices in Sikeston.

Thieu Restates His Opposition To A Coalition

SAIGON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger conferred twice today with President Nguyen Van Thieu, and Thieu's Information Ministry said the president had once again stated his opposition to a coalition government including the Communists.

President Nixon's chief foreign policy adviser and the South Vietnamese president reviewed Kissinger's secret peace negotiations in Paris for 3½ hours in the morning at a meeting attended by 13 other high- level U.S. and Vietnamese officials.

Kissinger and U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker returned in the late afternoon for another session with Thieu.

There was no official word or leak from the U.S. side of what was being said. But a spokesman for the South Vietnamese government, Vu Khanh, read this communique at the Information Ministry's daily news briefing:

"Political observers in Saigon remarked that at the arrival of the American delegation in Saigon, President Nguyen Van Thieu continues to meet with representatives of the Senate and the Lower House, the Supreme Court and various political parties and reasserted our firm position never to accept a tripartite proposal or any other political solution which has not been agreed upon by the people of South Vietnam through democratic means."

Khanh said the communique was sent to him at 10 a.m., midway through the first meeting between Kissinger and Thieu, and he was ordered to read it at the evening briefing.

He said he did not know why the communique attributed its information to "political observers" instead of an official government agency. But newsmen considered it a device for Thieu to make his position public without breaking any pledge of secrecy he might have given the Americans.

Police Seek Man Using Other's Name

A warrant will soon be issued for the arrest of Billy Wayne Coleman, who will be charged with using the name of Howard L. Chapman of Oran when arrested for driving while intoxicated Saturday.

Police found out today that Chapman was not the man they arrested.

Pros. Atty. Tom Gilmore said a warrant is already outstanding against Coleman for concealing mortgaged property. Gilmore said Coleman was not carrying a driver's license when arrested and gave Chapman's name to the police.

Coleman posted bond and left town. Gilmore said Coleman is believed to be either in Tennessee or Mississippi.

Temps Plunge On Heels Of Rain Storm

Flash floods failed to materialize in Southeast Missouri Wednesday, but heavy rains fell throughout the day.

Weather officials said today that if the rain continues in areas west and north of Cape Girardeau, some flooding may be expected in the next day or two.

The heavy rains covered most of the 75- mile area around Sikeston. The rest of the state recorded normal rainfall amounts. St. Louis reported .06 inch, Ste. Genevieve only a drizzle and West Plains reported .29 inch.

With the rain came chilly, winter- like weather and overcast skies. The high of 51 degrees recorded Wednesday was 29 degrees below Monday's 80- degree mark, and Monday's low of 55 was four degrees higher than Wednesday's high.

Burlison Denies Any Irregularities

Congressman Bill Burlison of Cape Girardeau has denied a report by the political lobby group, Common Cause, that his statement of campaign contributions and expenditures contained irregularities.

Burlison is seeking re-election in the 10th District.

Common Cause questions the figures released by Burlison and said the Democratic congressman declined to reply to the group's request for a disclosure of money raised before April 7, the day a new campaign disclosure law went into effect.

Burlison said the Common Cause report was erronous. He said any discrepancies in his financial statement were unintentional and harmless.

Burlison said the report was no more critical of his statement than it was of his opponent, M. Francis Svendrowski, a Farmington Republican.

Burlison also said he had released the names of persons who contributed to his campaign prior to the April 7 deadline.

Common Cause disagreed with the financial statements provided by two groups -- the Burlison for Congress Committee and the 10th District Burlison for Congress Committee.

The two groups said Burlison's receipts from Jan. 1 through Sept. 10 totaled $20,539.24 and that cash on hand as of Sept. 10 was

VETERANS DAY

What once was Armistice Day, recalling the end of World War I, has become Veterans Day, in tribute to those who served this nation in all its wars. For the British it is Remembrance Day.

A half-century after the first occasion we come to an especially heart-weary day as negotiators work toward an honorable peace to halt the longest war in our history.

Let us all pray to God for an early end, as we pay tribute to our veterans — and to those who have given their lives on behalf of our nations.

THE INFLATION ISSUE

Inflation, the basic "pocketbook" issue in any national political campaign, may well come to the fore in the final two weeks of the Nixon - McGovern contest. The Labor Department is scheduled to release its final pre-election report on consumer prices on Friday, Oct. 20, and both parties are sure to analyze the data with an eye to electoral gain.

The report, reflecting consumer prices in September, will be taken as a measure of President Nixon's success in bringing inflation under control. Nixon's announced target is to reduce inflation to an annual rate of 2 to 3 per cent by the end of 1972. If recent trends continue, the goal will be reached — presumably blunting the Democrats' last-minute drive for votes. Last month's consumer price index reported that August prices were 2.9 per cent higher than a year earlier, when Nixon first imposed wage-price controls, compared with a rise of 4.4 per cent in the 12 months before that.

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, says food prices have risen by 3.7 per cent in the past year and meat prices by 11.6 per cent. But he insists that "the American people are better fed, and for a lower proportion of their income, then ever before." At least one housewife finds fault with Stein's appraisal. "Here we are, spending more and more and getting less, but the Nixon economists are optimistic," complains Bernice Davidson of New York (New York Times, Sept. 29). The administration will continue to radiate optimism, at least until election day, in the hope that some of it will rub off on the nation's voters.

Quick Burial Needed For Burlison Amendment

Congressman Bill D. Burlison of Cape Girardeau is busying himself in Washington these days trying to change the Consititution's Bill of Rights.

We suppose he is within his rights as a Congressman to do so, but we think the nation could well do without his services in this regard.

Claiming he is doing it because of the Jack Anderson column about Senator Thomas Eagleton, the Congressman wants to amend the First Amendment, which guarantees freedom of the press.

For those who have forgotten their high school civics classes, the First Amendment to the Constitution states: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of thepeople peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances."

This is part of the Bill of Rights, which has been in effect since it was approved by the First Congress and by the States in 1791.

Under the Burlison version, the First Amendment would still guarantee freedom of the press . . . Except that public officials would have the right to recover civil damages or to impose criminal penalties on anyone who defames them.

Any fair-minded American must look with disgust at columnist Anderson's mud-slinging in the Eagleton case. He has been soundly condemned by most responsible elements in the nation's press.

However, putting the Burlison clause in the Constitution would be throwing away a great treasure along with the trash. Once established, the precedent of writing exceptions into the Bill of Rights could lead down the path of totalitarisnism—and, Lord knows, we don't need to move any farther or faster in that direction.

Over a long period the nation's Courts have held that the press must be free to print what it sees fit to print. The libel laws have been held to protect private citizens against untrue assaults on their character by the press.

However, recent decisions have held that public officials, or persons in the public eye, cannot win a libel judgement unless the newspaper used "reckless disregard for the truth" in writing and printing its stories. This is what bothers our Congressman.

We believe that the Courts remain the best protection of the rights of the public person againse defamation of character. In the Eagleton case, for example, the Senator could take columnist Anderson to Court with a good chance of collecting damages for Anderson's reckless and unwarranted attack on his good name. At least a trial would afford the Senator a public forum for setting the record straight.

We cannot agree with Mr. Burlison, that public figures need additional protection against the press. For every politician who has been unjustly injured by a member of the press , there are dozens whose illegal or immoral activities have been exposed to public scrutiny by a journalist protected by the First Amendment.

Take away any part of that protection, make the press afraid to print the truth about politicians due to fear of legal action (including criminal proceedings), and you have taken away one of people's last remaining checks on their political system.

No, Congressman, your proposed Amendment deserves a Quick and permanent burial.

People who say, "If I were you, I'd—."

People who laugh at other people for wearing toupees. (editor's note: Boyle must be getting ready to buy one himself.)

Dogs that would rather bite than bark.

The wave of the future. (It's all most of us can do to keep 9ur noses above water at high tide now.)

Pretty girls who, no matter what you suggest, say, "That's a no-no."

The fatalistic attitude that our present highway mortality toll is simply a necessary price that has to be paid for progress.

Mankind's habit of going to war just to kill time.

Lazy housewives who spend most of the afternoon watching soap operas on television, then rush to the supermarket and crowd it more at a time when people who have worked all day are trying to do their shopping.

Middle-aged tenors at cocktail parties who wait until midnight to prove that they can sing all the stanzas of "Sweet Adeline" without making a mistake.

Snow before Thanksgiving.

Rain on Easter Sunday.

Twins who think it's cute to dress alike after they are 18.

Husbands and wives who, at any age, think it is cute to dress alike.

People so proper that they become shocked and upset if they see a baby lick its runny nose.

Meaningless baseball statistics, such as, "This is the first time in World Series history that a left-handed shortstop with asthma was caught trying to steal second base in the fifth inning of the second game—although, of course, as everyone probably can readily recall, it has happened to five—yes, five—right-handed catchers with varicose veins."

Snobs, blobs and slobs.

Any more postcards of the Grand Canyon, the Eiffel Tower or the Taj Mahal by moonlight.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The efforts of President Nixon's dirty- tricks crew to disrupt and discredit the Democrats, say investigators, were carefully coordinated inside the White House. The political sabotage had these objectives:

1. When Sen. Ed Muskie pulled ahead of the President in the polls last year, worried White House aides sought to trip up the popular Maine Democrat. Muskie has complained that he was a victim of a "systematic campaign of sabotage." Some of the dirty tricks, including the forged "Canuck letter" which made it appear he condoned a racial slur, caused him serious political damage and contributed to his poor showing in the presidential primaries.

2. The political strategists in the White House concluded that George Wallace as a third-party candidate would tkae votes away from the President but as a Democratic contender could cause mischief for the Democrats. The White House, therefore, encouraged the Alabama governor to seek the Democratic nomination and worked undercover to help roll up votes for him in the Democratic primaries. In the crucial Florida primary, Sen. Henry Jackson contended with Wallace for conservative Democratic votes. Jackson tells us his campaign was hampered by political sabotage, not unlike the dirty tricks played on Muskie.

3. The White House strategists considered George McGovern to be the easiest contender for the President to beat. They sought, therefore, to help McGovern win the California primary, which sewed up the Democratic nomination for him. McGovern's chief rival, Hubert Humphrey told us his campaign in California was often fouled up. But except for a phony press release put out on his letterhead, Humphrey said he had no evidence of political sabotage. "I have to take some credit for the foul-ups myself," he said.

HUNT'S 'ATTACK'

4. Once McGovern was nominated, the White House objective was to portray McGovern as a radical and to link him with irresponsible elements who favored political violence. A Washington Post source claims White House aide Howard Hunt tried to organize "an attack" by demonstrators in McGovern's name upon the Doral Beach Hotel, which served as President Nixon's convention headquarters at Miami Beach. Subsequent to the conventions, McGovern's campaign has been subjected to political harassment. His national coordinator, Frank Mankiewicz, gave us some examples.

White House sources tell us that the President's chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman, was the key man who coordinated the efforts to hamstring Muskie, boost Wallace and abet McGovern's nomination. Although there is no direct documentary link between Haldeman and the sabotage squad, he issued instructions and received reports on all phases of the campaign.

Presidential appointments secretary Dwight Chapin, who has been linked by hthe Washington Post to the sabotage operation, worked closely with Haldeman, say our sources. White House aide Gordon Strachan, whom Time magazine claims was also involved with the dirty- tricks department, is a member of Haldeman's staff.

Perhaps the most irresponsible of the dirty tricks was a reported attempt to shut off the runway lights on a small field in northern Florida where Senator Jackson planned to land. The senator received a report that someone had phoned the airport to cancel arrangements for lighting the runway. The call was countermanded, however, in time to prevent a serious accident to Jackson and his party.

WRONG TOWN

Muskie also had flight trouble, according to the Washington Post. On a charter flight from California to Oregon, the pilot followed false instructions and brought Muskie down for an unscheduled stop in Salem, Ore.

One of the dirtiest tricks was the circulation of a phony flyer on Muskie's stationery, accusing Jackson and Humphrey of illicit sexual affairs. This hurt Muskie at the same time that it smeared his two Democratic rivals. Jackson asked the U.S. Attorney's office in Tampa, where the smear sheet was mailed, to investigate whether this violated the federal laws against anonymous political mailings. But so far, Jackson has received no answer.

Muskie encountered his worst harassment during the New Hampshire primary where phony calls and statements were made in his name. Jackson had his worst time in Florida. Someone broke into his headquarters in Miami, for example, and stole a taped endorsement by ex- Senator Harry Cain. It was too late to get Cain to tape another endorsement for use on the eve of the primary.

Like Muskie in New Hampshire, Jackson in Florida also had trouble with callers who attempted to disrupt his campaign schedule. False reports would be put out at campaign stops that he wasn't coming. At Bethune- Cookman College in Daytona Beach, for example, a false report almost sent the audience home before his speech.

CALL TO MEANY

Once it was clear McGovern would be the nominee, he suddenly became the victim of dirty tricks. Someone impersonating Gary Hart, for example, telephoned AFL-CIO President George Meany and virtually ordered him to meet McGovern in New York City the following morning. Needless to say, the furious Meany never showed up and still refuses to endorse McGovern.

Similar calls were made to Jersey City labor leaders telling them to appear at a rally that had never been scheduled for vice presidential nominee Sargent Shriver.

Other mysterious callers, claiming to be Hart, have told newsmen: "We are not Democrats. We are McGovernites." One of the Republican campaign objectives, it happens, is to portray McGovern supporters as McGovernites rather than Democrats.

No less than TV commentator Walter Cronkite has heard from a Hart imitator. The seasoned Cronkite, however, quickly tagged the caller as a phony.

The full story of dirty campaign tricks by both sides should be explored by a nonpartisan commission before the Novemoer election.

TAXES, INFLATION SHRINK WORKER'S PAY HIKES

A man earing $10,000 a year in 1966 subsequently got raises adding up to 30 per cent until, in 1972, he was making $13,000. But, says Tax Foundation, Inc., higher taxes and inflation have so cut into his higher wage that in 1972 it actually buys him $119 less than his $10,000 salary in 1966.

At a higher point in the salary scale, the research organization points out, a purchasing power loss of almost $2,000 is suffered by the man whose salary rose from $50,000 to $65,000 over the 1966-1972 span and has had his new affluence nicked by inflation and taxes.

Here is a breakdown, showing (for a family of four with one member working) the salary in each of the two years; the increase in Federal and state income taxes and Social Security taxes; the loss in Aftertax income due to inflation; and the net change in purchashing power:

| Salary 1966 | 1972 | Incr. Taxes '66-'72 | Los to in- flation. | Net Change, Purch. Power |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| $10,000 | 13,000 | $ 698 | $2,421 | $ 119 |
| 20,000 | 26,000 | 1,660 | 4,620 | 270 |
| 30,000 | 39,000 | 3,157 | 6,542 | 699 |
| 40,000 | 52,000 | 4,968 | 8,247 | 1,215 |
| 50,000 | 65,000 | 6,917 | 9,783 | 1,700 |

The man whose income rose from $10,000 to $13,000 over the 1966-72 period, the Foundation points out, had exemptions of $2,400 in the former year and of $3,000 in 1972. In 1966, his deductions ($1,890) plus his exemptions gave him a taxable income of $5,710.

His income and payroll taxes in 1966 totaled $1,295: Gederal income tax, $945; state income tax, $73; and Social Security tax, $277. His after-tax income thus became $8,705.

In income and payroll taxes in 1966 totaled $1,295: Federal income tax, $945; state income tax, $73; and Social Security tax, $277. His after-tax income thus became $8,705.

In 1972, now earning $13,000 the man's exemptions ($3,000), plus his $2,065 deductions, give him a taxable income of $7,935. In 1972, his taxes total $1,993: Federal income, $1,368; state income, $157; and Social Security taxes, $468. His 1972 after tax income is calculated by the Foundation to be $11,007.

The research organization estimates the rate of inflation over thyperiod at 28 per cent. This cuts the man's 1972 after tax income by an estimated $2,421, making its effective worth $8,586 — or $119 less than his undeflated, after-tax income of $8,705 in 1966.

AND HOW DO YOUR ORCHIDS GROW? Better with soap and water? Believe it or not, chemists at the University of California are investigating the beneficial effects of detergents on the growth of orchids seedling tissues. Who said soap suds aren't exotic!!

Other gardening experts tell us that you should always treat any seedlings with care and cleanliness. Apparently it's important to prevent infecting healthy young plants— to say nothing of the gardener—after handling any diseased plants. So, always wash hands thoroughly before handling seedlings, and also use fresh, clean water to dampen the flats.

A BARGAIN FOR THE SOVIETS

It is clear now that the communists drove a very good bargain for themselves during the recently completed wheat sale.

Because of mismanagement of farm equipment and some peculiar weather, the Russian wheat crop this year was more than 20 per cent less than last year. A crop failure of this magnitude would mean severe shortages which could have led to uprisings among the people against the government. There was only one place the Soviet Union could go to buy the wheat needed to ensure their continued hold over the people, and that was the United States.

Our government was eager to oblige. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz negotiated a 10-million- ton wheat deal with he communists. We even made it easy for Moscow to pay for the wheat, extending credit of $500 million for three years at low interest. Our government also allowed the Russians to buy the wheat the the current world price of $1.63 a bushel instead of the $2.00 or more per bushel U.S. price. Our government then paid U.S. grain exporters the difference, in what amounted to an outright taxpayer subsidy of the sale.

In return, the United States received exactly nothing. If the Administration was determined to go through with the sale and thereby shore up the Moscow regime, the least the negotiators could have done was obtained concessions from the communists in Vietnam or Eastern Europe. But there is no evidence that any such concessions were so much as mentioned.

The Kremlin has obtained itself a very good bargain. The enslaved people of Russia and our own citizens are paying for it. HLH

Smashing Pay Controls: Labor Chiefs Plan Unity After Election For Strike- Filibuster Assault on President's Powers

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON-- It did look, for the better part of the morning last Friday the 13th, the only one of its kind this year, that the day would be a lucky one for Richard Nixon's economic game plan. But some of the President's most intimate advisers, among whom he sat after walking into the Cabinet Room shortly after 10 a.m., had their fingers crossed.

From where they sat at the big table, the advisers saw the White House on a holocaustal collision course with a traditional enemy-- the militant United Auto Workers Union (UAW). The last time they collided (in 1970) the cost ran to billions of dollars and Mr. Nixon has charged the strike detailed the nation's prosperity.

It was peaceful inside the Cabinet Room last Friday as the President, for almost an hour, thanked the Pay Board, and its now- toughened chairman Judge Boldt, and Cost of Living Director Don Rumsfeld for keeping the nation's average pay hike to 5 per cent. And for zeroing in on the inflation target-- which meant lowering the annual cost- of- living rate to 3 per cent. And he was certain it would be down to 2 per cent by the year's end.

Those around him that morning got the feeling that nothing would be done about wage- price controls until "after the inauguration." And that the national 5.5 per cent permissible pay raise standard would be held right through Nov. 14, the first anniversary of Phase Two and the setting of that ceiling.

Then after inauguration-- no one in the White House doubts a sweeping victory-- the President will decide whether to ask for new Economic Stabilization Act powers, or for a six- month extension to cover the tough 1973 contract negotiations and to hold the fort for 1974-- the big major metals contract year.

The President, sitting across from Treasury Secretary George Shultz, the homefront Henry Kissinger, knew that the free world's prosperity could rest on such decisions.

But inauguration or no inauguration, the decisions may not be the President's to make.

American labor, this time hitting the theme of their favorite anthem, "solidarity," might not let him have such power. Especially if the labor-liberal- Democratic alliance controls the Congress again.

And they plan to prevent his winning a second set of controls even if they don't have the votes. Their senatorial allies can always filibuster a new economic stabilization bill to death -- or at least right through the bargaining in the electrical, rubber, trucking, meat packing and, finally, auto and farm implements industries. And these negotiations lead into 1974 -- with its steel confrontation.

Labor leaders now split between Dick Nixon and George McGovern, now growling at each other as sell-out artists, are agreed on what they call the need for the end of controls. Labor leader George Meany has been telling his people to fight for control of Congress so the Stabilization Act, from which the President draws his powers, can be wiped off the books.

And at the other end of the spitting spectrum, for example, the militant UAW veteran, secretary- treasurer Emil Mazey, second in command, told this correspondent the other day:

"We will consult with all of labor right after the election. And the President could wind up next May 1 without any controls, with no power to impose wage restrictions.

"We will hit hard. We will try to scuttle the Economic Stabilization Act or improve it as we see it. Or we could use new tactics to organize a filibuster. Then we could hold up legislation long after the act expires."

So, back to the Cabinet Room this past Friday the 13th. Secretary Shultz knows the labor movement. He is Mr. Nixon's ambassador to most of it. And he must have seen far beyond the horizon of those White House windows.

Out there that day and through the weekend, the Auto Workers were back to their traditional national militancy. They were on a hit- and- run strategy. This is the strategic strike tactic. Hit the one key plant from which flows the automative- machine parts, such as the GM stamping plant in Mansfield, Ohio.

Local 549, UAW, hit "Mansfield" that Friday the 13th. And Mazey and his colleagues in Detroit's Solidarity House know that a month- long Mansfield shutdown could choke the auto part pipeline and cripple GM production from Canada, through the U.S., into Mexico. And a few more such strategic strikes and the entire auto industry could grow paraplegic.

Why? Because GM is the world's biggest parts producer and sells to Ford, Chrysler, American Motors and the agricultural implement industry-- such as Deere and International Harvester.

Thus what happened that Friday, including other short strikes, was rehearsal for 1973's big negotiations for a new contract next September. Short strikes which would throw the entire vital industry's production schedule off-- in a fight for a big pay package.

And if there are no controls, or there is a filibuster, it will be showdown as usual.

So that may not have been a lucky Friday the 13th after all.

Bond-Dowd In Agreement At Independence Meeting

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Republican Christopher Bond and Democrat Edward L. Dowd found themselves in general agreement on more issues than they differed on in a joint appearance of the Missouri gubernatorial candidates here Wednesday night.

Both candidates spoke in favor of an open meetings law, collective bargaining for teachers, the merit system, welfare reforms and the equal rights amendment; both opposed legalized gambling or a state lottery and additional gun control measures.

Both also are outspoken advocates of a change in state government, but the agreement ends there.

Before an estimated 350 persons in the Truman High School auditorium, many of them young and seemingly equally divided in their support, Bond said, "Change is not enough if it is just a change in the faces within the party that has ruled the state for the past 28 years."

Dowd, speaking second after winning a preliminary coin toss, said "drastic changes" need to be made in Jefferson City. But he said experience is needed and that the next governor must be able to deal effectively with a state legislature controlled by the Democrats.

The appearance was sponsored by local units of the League of Women Voters and the American Association of University Women. Mrs. Helen C. Waters, state LWV president, served as a moderator.

Both candidates spoke for some 20 minutes, then fielded questions from the audience. Both Dowd and Bond were given an opportunity for two-minute answers to each question.

The nominees exchanged barbs on Bond's disputed residency and Dowd's alleged refusal to list all campaign contributions.

In the question and answer session, the candidates divided on the issue of a state no-fault auto insurance program. Bond said Missouri must adopt a "modified" no-fault plan. Dowd opposed such a program, saying state rssidents "don't realize what they will lose if they adopt no-fault insurance."

In his introductory remarks, Bond, the 33-year-old state auditor briefly outlined his proposals for a "circuit breaker" tax program for the elderly, better management of state revenue, a three-point drug abuse program of enforcement, education and rehabilitation and a plan to promote educational equality while preserving the autonomy of local schools.

In the field of crime and law enforcement, Bond called for regional correctional facilities, meaningful work-release programs and more funds for probation and parole activities.

Bond also noted he has proposed "sweeping reforms on how campaigns are financed," including elimination of the 90day cutoff period that provides for no report by the candidates of funds received 90 days prior to an election.

"These reforms and an open meeting law are the types of reform that may be made if we are to inspire confidence in state government," Bond said.

Then Dowd took the speaker's stand and recalled he had released major position papers on the changes needed in Missouri government when he first filed for governor two years ago.

"I see Mr. Bond has adopted practically all of them," Dowd added as his backers cheered.

Dowd, 54, made repeated references to his experience in law enforcement, the fact he has raised eight children in Missouri and that "I paid income tax to the state of Missouri every year."

Dowd said he refuses to endorse a sales tax on gasoline "or any other commodity" because the burden of the tax falls on those in the lower income bracket.

He called for the use of methadone for treatment of heroin addicts, although he noted the objection is that one is as addictive as the other.

Continue Search

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)— Feeling for some electronic pulse of life, an armada of planes prepared to resume the search today for a plane missing for three days with House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs and three other persons aboard.

Cool and clearing weather was expected to greet 35-40 aircraft crews, "if they can get off the ground due to the weather," an Air Force spokesman said.

He added that an electronic equipped search craft had flown the suspected flight path of the plane, "back and forth between Anchorage and Juneau" efforts to pick up possible distress signals.

Meanwhile, three Coast Guard cutters plied rough seas in the Gulf of Alaska during the night.

Bad weather continued to jumble the search schedule, but a Coast Guard spokesman in Juneau said it was "silly to give up hope when there are so many areas left uncovered."

Today's search was expected to center around two areas along the 560- mile route- the rugged Portage Pass area 50 miles southwest of Anchorage and coastline and mountain areas northwest of Juneau, about 500 miles to the Southeast.

GOP Sabotage Figure Is McGovern Volunteer

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Donald H. Segretti, named as a key figure in an alleged Republican spying and sabotage campaign against Democratic presidential candidates, is listed here as a volunteer for George McGovern.

Barbara Bennett, manager of the McGovern-Shriver campaign headquarters in this Los Angeles coastal suburb, showed newsmen Wednesday three index cards bearing Segretti's name but indicating he had never taken part in any McGovern-Shriver rallies, canvasses or other volunteer work.

No one at the Santa Monica office could recall seeing the man identifying himself as Segretti.

Miss Bennett said, however, that volunteers sometimes appeared at rallies and other events without signing themselves in and therefore she could not say categorically that Segretti actually never did any campaign work.

Segretti, 31, a registered Democrat and former Treasury Department attorney, has been unavailable for comment since Oct. 10, when he was first linked in news accounts to alleged operations by the GOP to disrupt Democratic campaign.

Efforts to reach him Wednesday night were unsuccessful.

Earlier Wednesday the New York Times joined the Washington Post and Time magazine in publishing stories linking White House aide Dwight Chapin to Segretti.

The Times said it had learned that at least 28 calls made from Segretti's home telephone and charged to his credit card were directed to the White House, Chapin's home, and to the home and office of E. Howard Hunt Jr., a former White House consultant indicted in the June 17 break-in at Democratic National headquarters.

Time magazine said this week that it was Chapin who hired Segretti as an undercover agent to "subvert and disrupt Democratic candidates' campaigns this election year" and that more than $35,000 was passed to him through Herbert Kalmbach, President Nixon's personal attorney.

Economy Slows But Makes Solid Gains On Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economy slowed down in the July-September quarter, but still scored solid gains while the rate of inflation edged up, the government said today.

The Commerce Department reported that the Gross National Product, market value of the nation's output of goods and services, advanced at a 5.9-per cent annual rate during the third quarter compared with 9.4 per cent in the second. The rate of inflation moved up to 2.2 per cent compared with 1.8 per cent in the second quarter.

Although the growth rate was slower than in the previous quarter it was well within the over-all performance forecast by the Nixon administration.

The administration has predicted that the economy will grow at slightly more than 6 per cent for all of 1972 while the rate of inflation will be about 3.25 per cent.

A Commerce Department analyst, Asst. Secretary Harold C. Passer, said the figures announced by his department made it virtually certain that 1972 "will be a banner year for the U.S. economy." He said they show the economy is continuing to expand rapidly and that inflation has been held in check.

Passer said prospects are excellent for the administration to reach its goal of a 3 per cent inflation rate at the end of the year. According to the GNP figures, the rate of inflation increased by 3 per cent in the first three quarters of the year.

The department said that GNP increased by $22.8 billion in the third quarter to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.162 trillion. In terms of current dollars, this was a growth of 8.3 per cent.

But in subtracting the effects of inflation, the government figured it as a real gain in output of 5.9 per cent.

In the previous quarter, the GNP increased by $30.3 billion. The administration said at the time that it would be difficult to sustain a growth rate of 9.4 per cent and as low a rate of inflation as 1.8 per cent.

The film was designed to be used in schools and churches and has been viewed by 250,000 school children and adults.

It is to help assist communities in their efforts in combating drug abuse or beginning one where none exists.

Art Linkletter, president of the National Co-ordinating Council on Drug Abuse Education, has said "We must get neighborhoods and communities to think and work together, drawing in as many diverse elements as possible. They must be moved by the urgency of the problem."

The film is being shown under the auspices of the Concordia Church. The showing is open to the public and no admission will be charged.

Ann Landers

Tackle Life's Problems One Day At A Time

Dear Ann Landers: Sorry, I don't agree with your comments to the wife who informed her husband that she gets the most out of their lovemaking when she pretends he's someone else. You said everyone fantasizes to a certain degree and it's nothing to become unglued about--- it's the same as daydreaming at night.

If a wife has to think about Ryan O'Neal when she's with her husband the least she can do is keep her mouth shut. I would not be very flattered if I discovered that the reason my husband was having such a great time was because he was pretending I was somebody else. If he confessed such a thing to me I'd tell him that if I wasn't exciting enough he could go find someone who was.

We hear too much these days about weirdos, switch-hitters, wife- swapping, peep-shows, naked men in centerfolds, and kooky sex practices. What we need in this country is a champion for decency and morality. I had hoped it would be you, Ann Landers. Sorry you let me down.--- No Substitutes Needed

Dear No Sub: The human mind is such an intricate piece of machinery that no one can say exactly how it operates, particularly in the area of sexual responses. What turns a person on is a mysterious mix of everything he ever saw, read, heard and dreamed about, plus assorted bits and pieces, so private they are shared with no one. Not everyone can tolerate complete openness and frank talk. So, I agree with you, honey, some people SHOULD keep their mouths shut.

Dear Ann Landers: Three years ago I clipped my favorite column and carried it in my wallet until it is just bareley legible. You called it "How To Get Through the Day," and it helped me more than anything I have ever read in my life. Will you play it again, Sam?--- Linda

Dear Linda: With Pleasure.

Just for today I will live through the next 12 hours and not tackle my whole life problem at once.

Just for today I will improve my mind. I will learn something useful. I will read something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

Just for today I will be agreeable. I will look my best, speak in a well modulated voice, be courteous and considerate.

Just for today I will not find fault with friend, relative or colleague. I will not try to change or improve anyone but myself.

Just for today I will have a program. I might not follow it exactly, but I will have it. I will save myself from two enemies --- hurry and indecision.

Just for today I will exercise my character in three ways. I will do a good turn and keep it a secret.

If anyone finds out, it won't count.

Just for today I will do two things I don't want to do, just for exercise.

Just for today I will be unafraid. Especially will I be unafraid to enjoy what is beautiful and believe that as I give to the world, the world will give to me.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen- Age Sex-- Ten Ways To Cool It." Send 50c in coin and a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope to this newspaper.

Underage Drinkers Sentenced To 60 Days, Fined $100 Each

BENTON — Jessie Eugene Mangrum of Advance and Randy McTurnan of Bloomfield were sentenced to 60 days in jail and fined $100 each by Judge Lloyd Briggs in Magistrate Court Wednesday. Mangrum and McTuran are both charged with having possession of intoxicating beverages underage.

After entering a plea of guilty to charges of driving while operator's license was revoked, Willie Shannon of Benton was sentenced to 90 days in jail and fined $50.

James Milo Johnson of East Prairie pleaded guilty to charges of driving while intoxicated. He was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $200.

Case was continued until Oct. 24 for Delbert Wayne Potts of Dexter. Hyis charged with writing a bad check to PJ's Auto and Home Supply Co. in the sum of $1,500.

Case was also continued for Eldon Ray Dover of Illmo until Nov. 1. Dover is charged with attempted burglary of the Amrhein Pharmacy in Illmo on Sept. 19.

Albert Ray Jr. of Haywood City was bound over to Circuit Court to appear on Nov. 11. Ray is charged with burglarizing a building belonging to James Ashcraft.

Case was dismissed on payment of cost for Joel Lacoil Smith of Cape Girardeau. Smith postdated a check to Orley Jackson in the sum of $200 requesting him to hold the check until a specified date until he had adequate funds in the bank to cover the check. Jackson took the check to the bank before the time was up and, after failing to collect the $200, pressed charges against Smith.

Leonard Dudley of Cape Girardeau was fined $5 plus court costs after he pleaded guilty to charges of careless and imprudent drifing.

A fine of $5 plus court costs was assessed to Darrell Wayne Klipfel of Oran. He was charged with careless and imprudent driving and failure to yield right of way, causing an accident.

Shirley Ann Hahn of Oran pleaded guilty to charges of failure to yield right of way causing an accident. She was fined $5 plus court costs.

William Whistler of Chaffee was fined $20 plus court costs after he entered a plea of guilty to charges of speeding.

Lukie C. Keith of Portageville was fined $10 plus costs after he pleaded guilty to charges of speeding.

Laird Moves For Control Of Military

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird moved today to strengthen civilian control of the military and expand the inspector general system to prevent a recurrence of incidents such as the unauthorized bombing of North Vietnam.

Laird announced that he has ordered an inspector general system created in the military's unified commands which would report to the Secretary of Defense through the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Under this, each unified command would have an inspector general on the staff with responsibility to inspect the individual service commands in operational military matters, particularly as they involve command and control, Laird explained.

There are a number of unified commands around the world, including the Pacific command headquartered in Hawaii, which has over-all responsibility for military operations of all the services in the Indochina war.

The Defense secretary's announcement was in a five-page letter to Sen. John Stennis, DMiss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, which this week asked Laird to advise what steps were being taken to avoid a repetition of the LaVelle affair.

Maj. Gen. John D. Lavelle was the commander of the 7th Air Force in Vietnam who ordered 28 unauthorized bombing strikes against the North from November 1971 through March of this year. He falsely reported these raids as "protective reaction" strikes.

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

Our society is becoming more and more highly developed, but in many ways our lives are more affected by weather than were lives in earlier days. So says UMC atmospheric scientist James McQuigg.

McQuigg has developed computer models to show how weather affects the demand for electric power. As one example, the higher the temperature, the greater the consumption of electricity for air conditioning.

And McQuigg's models show that the demand is increasing

Responsible for new product development in the department, Dr. Edmondson has recently been considering fish processing.

When fillets of frozen fish are prepared and packaged for the market, many desirable small pieces of fish are left over. Until recently, these have been discarded through conventional disposal methods, eventually contributing to pollution.

Dr. Edmondson proposes using soy protein from Missouri - grown soybeans. He would mix it with the "scraps" of fish to make fish patties.

"Once assembled, the patties would look the same, be nutritionally about the same, have as good or better texture, and be just as tasty as the original product," he says. Processor costs would go down, raw material costs would go down, the amount of fish wastes going into pollution would go down or completely disappear, and there would be an attractive new food product on the market.

Four hundred twenty families in five Missouri counties are working on a research project with the UMC College of Agriculture. The project seeks ways to increase incomes for farmers with small acreages when limited capital is available.

Twelve local farmers have been hired as assistants in the project. Each one will work with 25 to 35 families. These assistants have been trained by Extension specialists.

Already the UMC researchers have made important discoveries. They have found that a few of the small farm operators are taking advantage of government assistance that is available to them. Farm planning, low interest or guaranteed loans, cost-sharing, and educational programs are being ignored. Some of the farmers had never taken a soil sample before this new project was started.

Says project leader Ed Wiggins, "It is hoped that the knowledge we gain in the five counties now being studied will help us to develop a state-wide program. While only a few of these small farm operators may ever achieve big scale, many of them will be able to increase their net income and improve the quality of family living."

British Pound Drops 1.5 Cents

LONDON (AP) — The British pound fell to its lowest level in 22 months today under a wave of selling orders from continental centers. In two hours of hectic trading it dropped 1.5 U.S. cents.

Dealers said the pound apparently came under attack as a result of Britain's persistent high rate of inflation and the threat of a national power strike.

The pound dropped to $2.394 shortly before noon, down from Wednesday's closing of $2.4082.

This was its lowest level since December 1970. Sterling had lost more than 15 cents since June 23, when the British government freed the pound to float at the mercy of market forces to halt a run on the pound.

The present run, sparked like that in June by the state of the economy, took sterling below its previous parity of $2.40 for the first time since the December Smithsonian Agreement, when the dollar was devalued.

'Cat Dancing' Marked as Hit

HOLLYWOOD—(N E A)—Not since "True Grit" has a novel with a western setting inspired such enthusiasm among movie-makers. But now there is "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing," and it has Big Movie Hit written all over it.

It has something "True Grit" didn't have — a love story to go with its action. That's like having James Bond meet the Planet of the Apes. It's sure-fire box-office.

The property has been bought by Martin Poll and Eleanor Ferry and they're trying to put together a cast. MGM will be the studio. Lots of rumors are flying around about the cast—you hear John Wayne mentioned (he's mentioned for everything, except maybe the sequel to "Mary Poppins") and Steve McQueen and Elliott Gould and Dustin Hoffman.

They should consult Marilyn Durham, the housewife from Evansville, Ind., who wrote the book. When she was working on it, she says, she kept a couple of people in mind for the key roles. She says she has a bad memory for faces so she had these people in her head so she'd never forget what her characters looked like.

For the girl, Julie Adams. For the girl's husband, Carroll O'Connor. And for the leading man, she stuck a poster of Lee Van Cleef up on her wall. In fact, it was a picture of Van Cleef looking mean and threatening, so she put it up on her refrigerator door and added

John Wayne

Carroll O'Connor

Rumors, rumors.

the words, "Keep out." Mrs. Durham, you see, tends to put on weight. She says the poster didn't help her diet but it did help her book.

There ought to be a movie about Marilyn Durham, as well as a movie from her book. Her story is one of those Henrietta Alger affairs. You have every right not to believe it, it's so corny. But it's true unless everybody else has fallen for a hoax, too.

Marilyn Durham grew up in Evansville, went to school and college in Evansville, married in Evansville and still lives there. A bright girl, she always "wanted to do something," but never quite made it. She wanted to act, first, but that was "impossible." For awhile she wanted to paint but that wasn't quite it, either. And for a long time she wanted to write.

"As I inched up on 40," she says, "I felt depressed—I'd done nothing with my life. So I decided to write a novel."

For a year, she read novels and studied their formats. For a few more months she read books on how to write books. Then she had the old family typewriter cleaned, bought some paper and set up a card table in the bedroom.

Most first novels are autobiographical but not Mrs. Durham's. She says her own life was too dull for a book. She made up a story, set in the Old West, and began banging away at the typewriter. She didn't even tell her husband, Kilburn, "a bureaucrat with the Social Security Department." She didn't tell her two kids. She'd type after they'd gone to work and school, have things put away by the time they got home.

She did her research in the children's section of the Evansville Library. She didn't want to go deeper than that. At one point in the book, her heroine suffers a lot from a few days and nights in the wilds. She says that's from personal experience.

"Catherine's misery in the wilderness," she says, "is based entirely on my misery one weekend when I took a Girl Scout troop on an overnight encampment."

It took a long time to sell the book. It was rejected by a bunch of agents and publishers. But when it sold, it sold big, and she'll make a lot of money from book and movie.

The first fruits of her labors: She bought a new car for her husband and a used car for herself and she bought her daughter a horse. The cars were O.K., but the horse was a lemon—it had thrush, fungus and the back legs were pigeon-toed, but the girl likes it anyhow. Then her other daughter broke her collarbone "so I bought her a new collarbone." She bought them all new glasses and a new house.

She wrote a second novel, "Dutch Uncle," while waiting for "Cat Dancing" to sell. So she's in good shape. And she's enjoying success. Why not?

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Look for a Nixon Vietnam Surprise

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA)

The odds are rising that somewhere in the Oct. 18-22 span President Nixon will spring a Vietnam war announcement which may dash altogether Sen. George McGovern's now faintly building hopes. High sources say the Nixon move will have a hard, convincing core to it, rather than a tone of vague promise.

If the plan comes off as presently projected, the President will not begin his heavy on-the-road campaigning until his announcement is made. On the assumption that it will be well received, the thinking is that Mr. Nixon's two weeks of political travel could take on the air of a triumphal tour.

This strategy would delay by one week the original schedule which called for the President to hit the trail steadily by Oct. 14-15. It does not preclude quick in-and-out trips like the Oct. 12 parade-and-rally venture to Atlanta to show the GOP flag in the Deep South.

Speaking of the President's evident intent to pull off a good one in the closing weeks, a friend says:

"The President has been waiting for this moment for a long time. He's been done to death with Democrats' late-hour coups (like Lyndon Johnson's Oct. 31 bombing halt in 1968). You can just bet he's not going to let this opportunity slip away."

Mr. Nixon, always conscious of political timing and getting frequent advice on the subject, seems to think very late-hour moves like LBJ's are unwise, that there's more benefit from earlier steps which have a chance to sink in with voters and may enhance a candidate's final crowds.

The planned Nixon coup does not reflect fear in the White House and other GOP circles that McGovern is seriously closing the wide gap most public and private polls show still exists between the two presidential nominees. The President has something else in mind. Says a knowledgement Republican analyst:

"He wants to see some records tumble. He'd like to silence all that talk that he can't be a big winner."

Matching or beating Johnson's 61 per cent in 1964 and Franklin D. Roosevelt's 60.8 per cent in 1936 may be too high a goal, despite today's one-sided polls putting Nixon in that range.

What would be deeply satisfying to the President would be to surpass the landslide margins run up in 1952 and 1956 by national hero Dwight D. Eisenhower on the Republican ticket. Ike's well-remembered best showing, in 1956, gave him 57 per cent of the vote and a winning margin of 9.5 million votes.

The Democrats' early season jibes at Nixon as a man who fades under campaign pressures and nearly blows it probably were a strategic mistake. They have only heightened his determination to apply a crusher to McGovern in what will, of course, be the President's last election campaign of his lifetime.

Nixon clearly relishes his unique chance to command events in a political situation. Only a president, obviously, has so sure an opportunity.

McGovern, of course, is the one who really needs the big coup. My newest nationwide telephone survey of the states produces ample testimony that he is a little better off generally than a month ago, but that few think he can make it a close race unless he "gets a big break" or "catches fire." So far, nothing like this has happened.

Meantime, Mr. Nixon doesn't mind too much McGovern's charges that he is "in hiding." Yes, the President likes the open fight. But it's also nice to sit there, waiting, with one hand on a nice fat surprise package.

THAT'S A GOOD QUESTION, would appear to be the reaction of Frank Mankiewicz, a director of Sen. George McGovern's troubled campaign, during a Washington press conference.

Washington Report by Senator Symington

SENATE ACTS ON YOUTH LEGISLATION, CLEARS FOR WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Towards the conclusion of the 92nd Congress, the Senate passed and cleared for the White House an amended Youth Conservation Corps Act to expand the summer youth employment program that has been in operation the past two yerars.

The three year program had been funded at an authorization level of $3.5 million through 1973.

The new bill extends the program another year with a $30 million authorization in fiscal year 1973 and $60 million in fiscal 1974.

The youth program, since enactment in 1970, has provided employment opportunities to young men and women from various backgrounds during summer months to develop, protect, and maintain Federal recreation areas and public lands.

Jobs include campground and trail construction and maintenance, soil erosion control, range management, timber stand improvement, shoreline stabilization and historical research.

Expansion of the program also includes provision in the bill for Federal support to States to establish youth conservation programs on State lands, with a maximum 80 percent share of the cost for any program. Thus far the program has been limited to Federal recreation areas and public lands.

The new bill also would provide that the Secretaries of Agriculture and Interior determine with other Federal agencies additional appropriate programs under their respective jurisdictions that could use youth corps services.

Other new provisions include authorization of off-season use of permanent Corps facilities by local educational institutions for environmental studies, and to provide that surplus or unused Federal equipment be made available for Corps use.

This program of providing additional employment opportunities to youth, at the same time maintaining our natural resources, has been determined as most worthwhile. In the first year of operation in 1971, over 124,000 young people applied for the 2600 positions then available.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Animal Products are Culprits

Do Fruits Contain Cholesterol?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—My husband was told by his doctor to go on a low cholesterol diet for four months and then he would check him again. I know the foods to avoid like ice cream, gravy, chocolate, fried foods, etc., but I'm wondering about fruits when he is hungry (apples, oranges, and bananas, etc.). What about canned vegetables as long as they are packed in water. Can he drink beer?

Dear Reader—As far as cholesterol content is concerned, none of the vegetables or fruits or plants contain cholesterol. It's only animal products such as meats, dairy products, and eggs, that contain cholesterol. There is no reason why your husband couldn't eat fruits and vegetables and no reason from the cholesterol or fat point of view why he couldn't drink beer.

Your doctor may have wanted your husband to go on a low fat, low cholesterol diet since just limiting the cholesterol alone in the diet often won't accomplish so much. Such a diet would have to consist of fruits, vegetables, lean meats (like round steak with all the excess fat removed), fish, chicken and low fat or fortified skim milk, and if your husband needs to lose weight, he should avoid all high calorie foods, including concentrated sweets, and fat of any kind whether it is vegetable or animal.

Without controlling obesity most diet programs are doomed to failure in preventing fatty deposits in the arteries (atherosclerosis). A gradual fat reduction with continued prevention of obesity combined with a low fat, low cholesterol diet seems to work best.

The most commonly eaten food high in cholesterol is the egg yolk. One yolk contains about 250 milligrams. A three and one half ounce (raw) serving of lean beef contains only 70 milligrams.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am quite concerned with a skin condition I contracted after taking birth control pills for two years. My face became quite blotched and although I have been off the pill now for two years, the pregnancy mask which the doctor said would lighten up and disappear has failed to do so and my face is still vividly marked. What can I do or take to correct this disfiguring condition?

Dear Reader—I am afraid that there isn't anything you can take. This complexion problem is the same that affects some women during pregnancy and is exactly the same as the pregnancy mask that you referred to. It is an increase in the normal pigmentation produced by the skin. In a sense the spots are giant freckles. What you're up against then is the same question as how to remove freckles. Staying out of the sun will probably help. If you're exposed to the sun, and depending on the distribution of the spots, you may be able to cover the individual spots with any form of sun screen while not covering the rest of the skin. This will help to even the tanning of the skin and may be of some benefit. I wish I could be more encouraging, but unfortunately, that's nature. They do tend to diminish or go away in the course of time in most women who have this problem after they quit taking the birth control pill or after pregnancy.

In The Light Of The Silvery Moon Rip-Off

Art Buchwald
in the Commercial Appeal

WASHINGTON — The retail value of the commercial exploitation of the Appolio program has now passed one million dollars. That is to say, people have made more than a million dollars cashing in on the astronauts' trips to the moon. Unfortunately the astronauts have shared in this questionable rip-off of the space program. Every day reveals some new commercial aspect of the Apollo trips that was not known to the American public.

There is a fear among some that the million dollars is just the tip of the iceberg, and the really big deals that the astronauts made with promoters have not come out yet.

The biggest nightmare of all for the space agency is that astronauts may have SOLD the moon to an unscrupulous real estate developer. One day in the not too distant future someone like E. Pluribus Yunum may walk into NASA headquarters and say, "I understand you're building a space shuttle to land on my moon."

"Your moon?" a NASA official asks.

"Yes, I bought the moon from the astronauts 16 months ago. There's the deed, registered in Houston, Texas."

"But they had no right to sell the moon to anyone!"

"Who says so? I gave them each $2,500, and they sold the place to me, air rights and all. Now don't get me wrong. I'm not against the space shuttle, because we will need transportation when we develop 'Moonlight Acres.' But we just want to make sure the landing field for the shuttle won't interfere with our master plan."

"Just a minute," the NASA man says. He pushes the button on his intercom. "Send in any Apollo astronauts you can find in the building."

A few minutes later three astronauts come into the office.

"Did you sell this guy the moon?" the NASA man asks.

"He took an option on it," one of the astronauts replies sheepishly.

"And I picked up the option," Yunum says. "Don't you remember I gave you each a check and the right to build a house apiece on the Sea of Tranquility?"

"I knew we signed some papers," another astronaut admits, "but I didn't know the sale was final."

"It's final, all right," Yunum says. "We're taking ads in next Sunday's newspapers announcing the sale of lots.

"We're also selling acreage, $10 down and $10 a month, along the Sea of Serenity. We'll provide a golf course, tennis courts, schools, roads and fishing and boating facilities to the lucky owners. And each site will have an unobstructed view of Earth."

The NASA man says, "I don't know what it is, but there has to be something illegal about this sale."

Yunum says, "I checked it out with my lawyers. There is no question about it; I own the moon and I'm going to develop it. Now if you people still want to land on it, it's all right with me. But I don't want a lot of spaceships landing late at night. It could discourage real estate sales."

The NASA executive looks at the astronauts. "How could you do it? How could you cheapen the whole space program by selling the moon?"

"If we hadn't," an astronaut says defensively, "one of the other guys would have done it. Besides, he told us he wanted to make a notional park out of it."

"If you want," another astronaut says, "we'll give the $2,500 back."

EAGLETON AMENDMENTS FOR AGRICULTURE IN NEW POLLUTION CONTROL BILL

On October 4 Congress finished work on a new water pollution control law and sent it to the President the next day for his signature.

If the President signs it, this law will authorize $24 billion in federal assistance to states and communities to help them clean up the nation's waters and will establish a two- phase cleanup program for industry with increasingly strict restrictions on industrial pollution.

I am pleased to report that the bill which the Congress sent to the President includes all of my proposals for helping farmers in their efforts to control agricultural pollution.

Research Program

One of my proposals establishes for the first time a comprehensive research program on improved methods of preventing agricultural water pollution.

Another proposal I offered establishes a program under which farmers and ranchers can receive federal financial and technical assistance for demonstrating new and improved methods for controlling agricultural pollution.

These and related proposals which I introduced require close cooperation between water pollution control officials and representatives of the Department of Agriculture. Without such cooperation, farmers, ranchers, and others engaged in agriculture would have no assurance that pollution control programs would take into account the special problems of agriculture.

REAP

I am also pleased to report that the President has approved Congress' appropriation of $225.5 million for the 1973 Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP).

The REAP program makes it possible for hundreds of thousands of American farmers to protect valuable farmland and our streams and waterways from the damaging effects of soil erosion. Under that program, farmers put up at least 50% of the soil conservation efforts and provide the labor, time, and machinery.

The money appropriated by Congress for REAP will produce a total investment of nearly $500 million of public and private money in the vital effort to conserve farmland and restore our rivers and streams.

Over two and one- half months have elapsed since the President signed the REAP appropriations, but no money has been released for the program as yet. On October 11, 1972, I wrote the President urging him to announce the release of next year's REAP funds without delay. I hope the President's announcement of the release of REAP funds for 1973 will come soon.

Mail Box

I would like to state some political facts that some voters may be too young to know and some older voters may have forgotten.

The North could not compete with the slave labor of the South, so the Republican Party under the leadership of Abraham Lincoln started the Civil War. They crushed the South and freed the slaves. Then they made capitalistic slaves of both Black and White when the laborers gained unions. When the union went out on strike the army was called in to crush the strikers.

As late as 1922 the labor of the Frisco Railway Shops at Chaffee went out on strike. Two companies of National Guard were called in to crush this.

Herbert Hoover made a speech in Detroit in which he proclaimed that a dollar a day was enough for a working man.

In 1929 World War I veterans marched on Washington, trying to get a veterans bonus. They were fired on and their tents were burned.

This is the principal of the Republican Party.

People working for a living, carrying a union card, receiving social security, who votes a Republican ticket needs to hang their head in shame.

United we stand
Divided we fall

POLLY'S POINTERS

Remove Pen Marks With These Tips

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I am answering the reader whose two-year-old had marked on her stereo with a felt tipped pen. My little boy marked up my dresser, a door and the dryer with a black, a blue and a green one. While putting on some cologne I dabbed some of the marks to see what would happen. They were removed completely and with no damage to the finish on any of the things. I thought it was the alcohol in the cologne that worked the trick.—MRS. T. C. G.

DEAR GIRLS—Always test an inconspicuous spot first as finishes vary. Denatured alcohol is a remedy often suggested for the removal of ballpoint ink from fabrics.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—My little boy marked all over the deep freeze, aluminum screen door and a hardwood door with a black felt tipped pen. It cleaned off very easily with a well-known spot remover cleaning fluid. It even faded marks that had been on my husband's tool box for over a year.—JOYCE

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—My lovely crystal bud vase has a rust stain in the bottom made by the stem of an artificial flower. I do hope some reader can tell me how to remove this rust. Soap and water do not faze it. Thank you so much.—ANN

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with companies who make glasses with gold decorations that wash off.—MRS. R. T.

DEAR POLLY—I am a college art student and so many people in art classes have duplicate equipment. I use adhesive-backed plastic-coated paper to identify my tools. A small patch or strip of a distinctive design is on everything I carry with me. This takes a bit of time but certainly beats trying to scratch my initials on everything. This also would be useful for all school children no matter what age. In our dorm we are not allowed to put anything on the walls that would make a hole or scratch. Consequently there are a lot of barefaced walls. I put inexpensive adhesive backed cork tiles on a wall so they cover an area 4x6 feet and on them I hang my drawings, posters, pictures or just about anything and have no worries about the plaster. The cork panel makes a dramatic focal point for the entire room.—DEBORAH

THOMAS A. FINDLEY

DUDLEY — Thomas Alexander Findley, 95, died Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. in his home.

He was born Sept. 22, 1877 in Puxico and was a retired farmer. On Dec. 28, 1926, he married Sophia N. Howard, who survives.

He was a member of Dudley Methodist Church.

$8,113.13. Common Cause said the figures were $18,473.24 and $7,756.44.

A pre-primary election report and the latest report, filed on Sept. 10, "began with cash on hand totals that were not consistent with the cash on hand figures at the close of the periods covered by previous reports," Common Cause said.

"In other instances, refunds totaling $1,033 appeared to be counted three times, once on the pre-primary report, and twice on the Sept. 10 report as both a refund and an individual contribution," the report added.

"These discrepancies, plus an apparent typographical error and several omissions on the total receipt column, made it difficult for Common Cause to determine an accurate financial picture" for Burlison, the report said.

Common Cause said Svendrowski listed $1,588.40 in expenditures and no contributors. Common Cause indicated that he may have paid for his campaign out of his own pocket.

The report said "there is nothing in the candidate's reports explaining this apparent discrepancy and nothing indicating the source of the funds used to cover the expenditures listed."

SHS Homecoming Friday

Coach Pete Cirrintano's Sikeston High School football team has the unenviable task of hosting the state's top rated Cape Girardeau Central Tigers in homecoming activity at Public School Stadium Friday night.

But a few of the circumstances surrounding this battle seem to add some enthusiasm for the Bulldogs.

Friday night's battle has been a long-awaited assignment for the young Bulldogs, who have pointed toward the Bengal clash all season.

Cape is riding high on a 13-game winning streak, dating back to a 17-0 thrashing at the hands of Parkway West last year. The last time Cape lost in conference action was four years and 22 games ago to the Sikeston Bulldogs on a homecoming date for the Dogs, 14-6 in 1968.

Since that year, Cape has won four conference crowns in a row and is bidding strongly for the fifth this year. A win against Sikeston would be a big step for coach Gary Lynch's crew.

Cape is also attempting to qualify for the state playoffs. The complicated rating system has hurt Central. Currently, despite a perfect 6-0 record, the Tigers are third in their district and have to be considered an outside shot for the playoff berth.

Cape is the only 4-A school from Southeast Missouri ever to qualify for a berth, losing in 1969 to McCluer High School of St. Louis, 27-0. The Tiger's cannot afford loss, if they wish to keep their dim hopes alive.

Sikeston is coming off a big win against Dexter last week, 50-26. The Dexter team, riding a four-game winning streak, was unable to cope with the superior Sikeston speed and the outstanding passing of Bill Colwick, as the Bearcats fell before the huge point barrage of the Bulldogs. "They put it all together against Dexter," Coach Lynch commented. "They are a team of potential."

Sikeston drew some heat for running up the score against Dexter, but the Bulldogs were forced to despite the high score Sikeston never led by more than 24 points, and that was late in the game. Although the Dexter defense was unable to stop the Sikeston passing and running games, the Bearcat offense seemed to move well through the air. The 26 points scored by the Bearcats would have been enough to win on most occasions.

Cape Central stresses team work. "Teams win games," Lynch said. "Individual stars are okay, but team work gets results."

Lynch has a few individual stars on his team this year, however. Tailback Paul Schermann is acclaimed to be the best back in this corner of the state and is a real candidate for all-state honors. The senior, one of three returning starters on the offensive team, has run for more than 950 yards in six games, averaging more than 12 yards per carry and scoring 110 points, a scoring pace that is record-setting in the district.

Schermann has a fine offensive line to follow and his greatest talent is following blocks, since the 190-pounder lacks outstanding speed.

Quarterback Bill Seabaugh, despite being in his first year of varsity competition, has a passing percentage above 50 per cent, for nearly 20 yards per completion, and is leading Southeast Missouri in touchdown passes. More important, he is a deceptive quarterback, leading the offense to an average of 39.8 points per game after six contests.

Tim Vickery is another returning starter in the backfield. Vickery has run for more than 500 yards and is a solid back in his own right.

Central returns six starters on defense, but the crew takes on a veteran look once they take the field. They have allowed just 29 points in six games so far, just three more than Sikeston allowed against Dexter last week.

Among Central opponents have been St. Louis number two team (at the time they played Hazelwood), one of southern Illinois' top teams in Carbondale and their prime challengers in the Norther Division, the Jackson Indians. Jackson, given the best shot at stopping Central, bowed 49-6.

Central's plus marks are overwhelming, but they will be facing a Sikeston team that seems to have blossomed overnight. Earlier in the season, opponents weren't stopping Sikeston, the Bulldogs were stopping themselves.

The line suddenly seemed to jell agains the Bearcats, as Sikeston ran up its highest score sinc 1964. The running, overshadowed by the fantastic passing game, accounted for 201 yards and four scores, after producing just one touchodwn in the first five games.

The defense was not real tough against Dexter, but it will have to be against Cape. However, the team had prepared for the wishbone attack and Dexter came out passing. It took the Dogs a long time to adjust and, even so, they were never real effective against Backfish, the Bearcat passer.

If Cape has some bonafide talent, so do the Bulldogs. Split end Glenn Guttenfelder has caught 30 passes for 670 yards after six games. Both are record paces. Quarterback Bill Colwick has established himself as the top passing quarterback to ever play for Sikeston.

Despite the absence of a solid running game during most of his two years at Sikeston, Colwock has completed over half his passes for a record average of 140 yards per game.

With the newly rejuvenated running attack backing him, he and his receiving buddies, Guttenfelder, Eisenbach and Farris, could give the Cape Central Tigers quite a surprise.

If the Dogs are not able to move the ball and, in turn, put a lot of pressure on the defense, it may be a sad homecoming for Bulldog fans.

Twilight Helps

OAKLAND (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds and Oakland A's entered the "Twilight zone" again tonight for the fourth game of the 1972 World Series.

And because of it, both teams looked forward to another low- scoring game following Cincinnati's 1-0 triumph Wednesday night that cut Oakland's series lead to 2-1.

"The twilight made the difference for me," said winning pitcher Jack Billingham after gaining the victory with ninth- inning help from Clay Carroll.

"You'll see another good one tonight with Don Gullett pitching," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson.

"Maybe the rest will be one- run games too," said Oakland Manager Dick Williams.

The first two games of the best- of- 7 series were played in Cincinnati last weekend, but the 3-2 and 2-1 Oakland successes were fashioned without any assistance from nature.

When the Series switched to the Oakland Coliseum this week, the starting time for the contest in California was 5:30 p.m. That's the worst time for a hitter because of the fast- fading light.

Cincinnati slugger Johnny Bench, who went 0- for- 4 Wednesday night and struck out three times, had been apprehensive about the conditions.

"I hate to hit in the twilight in Oakland," he had said.

But while it hurt the major leagues' top home run hitter, it also didn't do too much for the Oakland team.

"I don't usually strike out that many batters," said Billingham, who fanned seven Athletics. "The twilight no doubt helped me."

There was no twilight, however, when Billingham tired in the ninth. The journeyman right- hander, who gave up three hits through eight innings, started the ninth by throwing three straight balls to Mike Epstein while the crowd of 49,401 at the Coliseum sheered.

Anderson then decided that Billingham had gone far enough.

Carroll then came in to preserve that shaky lead by getting Epstein on a bouncer, Sal Bando on a soft line drive and George Hendrick on an easy hit to the mound.

While he was in, Billingham, a right- hander with an unspectacular .500 lifetime record, was a superman as far as Oakland was concerned. He fed the A's a steady diet of sinker balls and allowed only three flies during his tenure.

The only hits that he gave up were a bunt single by Joe Rudi in the fourth and infield hits by Dick Green in the fifth and pinch-hitter Gonzalo Marquez in the seventh.

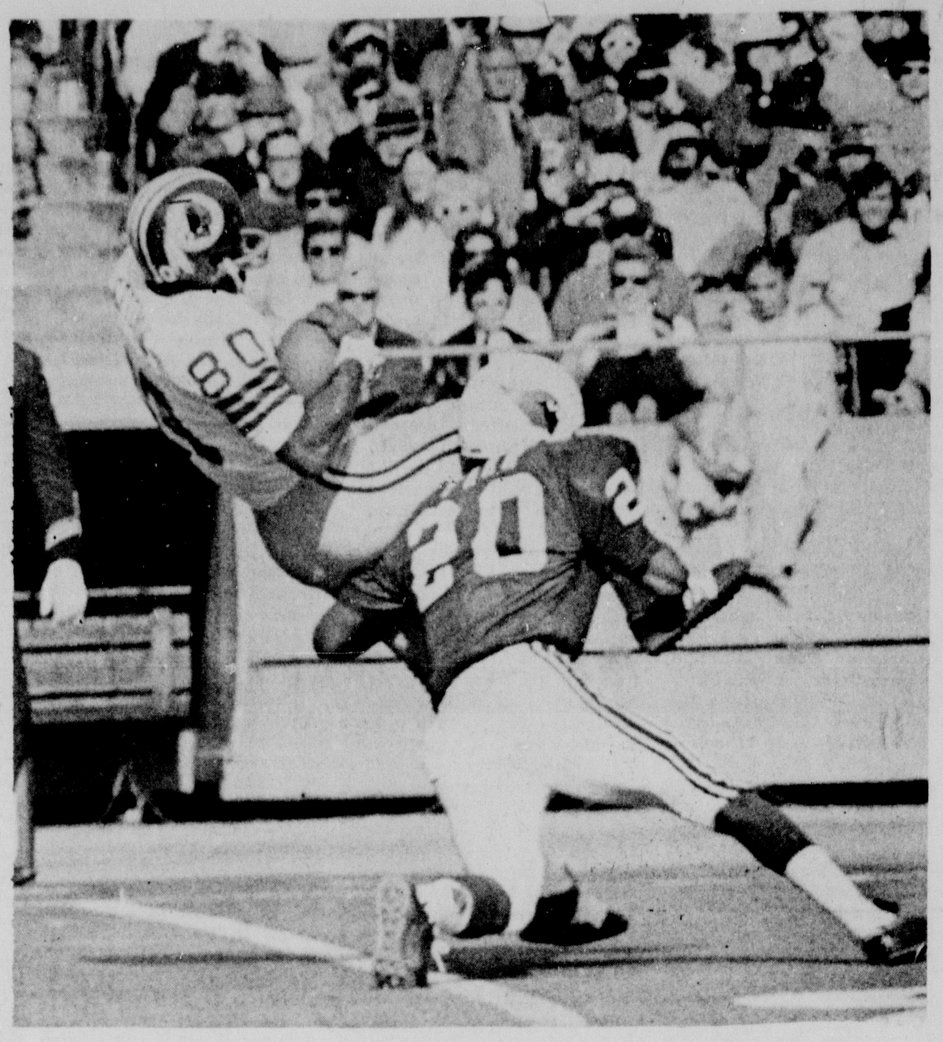
His only jam came in the sixth inning, when the A's had men on first and third with none out and the bases loaded with one man gone. But Billingham finished off the A's by getting Bando on a rally-killing double play.

John "Blue Moon" Odom was equally good for Oakland, striking out 11 before running into trouble in the seventh inning, when the Reds scored the game's only run.

Tony Perez signled and was sacrificed to second base by Denis Menke. Cesar Geronimo, hitless in his first nine World Series appearances, then laced a single to center field.

Perez barreled around third, slipped and fell on a field made soggy by 10 straight days of rain. But he picked himself up and scored the winning run when Oakland shortstop Bert Campaneris made no relay throw.

Williams has tapped Ken Holtzman to face Gullett in a matchup of hard-throwing southpaws tonight. The fifth game will also be played here Friday afternoon and the sixth and seventh, if necessary, in Cincinnati Saturday and Sunday.



BIG RED defensive back Miller Farr (20) brings down the Washington Redskins' Roy Jefferson (80) after the wide receiver caught an eight-yard pass in the Skins' 33-3 drubbing of the St. Louis Cardinals Sunday at Busch Memorial Stadium. The Cardinals travel to New York Sunday for battle with the Giants.

Reds 'Riled Up'

OAKLAND (AP) — Cincinnati slugger Johnny Bench says the World Series umpires have done the Reds a favor.

"We got a few calls that upset us tonight," Bench said after Cincinnati's tense 1-0 victory over Oakland Wednesday night.

"Our ball club is riled up," he said. "Now maybe we've worked out our frustrations."

Bench was anything but a key factor in the Cincinnati triumph, being called out on strikes three times, once with teammates on second and third base.

He was particularly upset about a call at first base in the Oakland sixth, when umpire Frank Umont said Bench's throw had drawn Joe Morgan off the bag.

That play put Oakland runners at first and second, but the Reds worked out of a baseloaded jam moments later with a double play.

Bench said his inability to hit didn't stem from the pressures of low-scoring games in which the Reds look to him for home run power.

"Naturally you want to drive in men," he said. "And tonight was the first time (in the Series) when I've come up with men on base.

"Everybody's had the problem of not driving in runs," he said. "We hadn't had batting practice in three days (because of rainy weather). But I still felt the big hits would come."

Most of the Reds, and Manager Sparky Anderson, saw the victory as a turning point.

Anderson said it led him to stick by his earlier prediction that "we'll win it in seven (games).

"We've got a pretty good team and we're in a pretty good league," he said, "and I still think we'll win it."

Bench said the victory is "a big boost for us. If we're (down) 3-0, it's tough, really tough. Now we're coming back."

"Our momentum is up now," said relief pitcher Clay Carroll, who came on in the ninth with a 3-0 count on slugger Mike Epstein and promptly retired three straight men.

Just Poor Acoustics

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Athletics blamed nobody, just poor acoustics, for the run that gave the third game of the World Series to the Cincinnati Reds.

"The runner's supposed to score on that play," center fielder George Hendrick said Wednesday night, patiently going over his part of the ball handling on Cesar Geronomo's game-winning hit in the seventh inning.

The Reds' Tony Perez was on second base and started running when Geronomo singled up the middle. Hendrick, going by the book, threw toward second base—just before Perez fell flat on his face rounding third base.

Shortsop Bert Campaneris took the throw near second and checked to see if Geronimo was trying to stretch the hit into a double.

"I saw Perez fall down and I yelled for Campy to go home with the throw, but the crowd was yelling and he couldn't hear anything," third baseman Sal Bando said. "If the throw had gone home right away, we would have had him."

Catcher Gene Tenace said, "I was yelling 'home' too, but I knew Campy couldn't hear us."

The shortstop said, "When I see the guy, he's sliding into home."

After the 1-0 loss, A's Manager Dick Williams said, "We're still ahead, two games to one, and I still think we're going to win the World Series. I won't predict how many games it will go.

"It won't be a sweep. I can tell you that."

Williams was hoping his team would be able to take batting practice—something it hasn't had since Sunday—before tonight's fourth Series game.

"But I've always said good pitching will beat good hitting, and the pitching in this game was excellent," he added.

Reds' starter Jack Billingham, who was relieved by Clay Carroll in the ninth, gave up only a bunt single and two infield singles.

A's starter John "Blue Moon" Odom went seven innings, giving up three hits and striking out 11, three more than he fanned in any regular season game.

Missouri Sportsmen Time

JEFFERSON CITY— When the air gets nippy and full of footballs, the time is ripe for Missouri sportsmen.

The big crowds have left the lakes, water skiers and boaters are at a minimum while good lunker fishing is at a maximum and good hunting is close at hand.

Not too many years ago, the fisherman packed up and left the lakes just about the time lunkers were ready to hit. Not so today. Fall and winter fishing is gaining in popularity as more and more lunkers are caught.

Last year for example, one of my best days of the year on the Lake of the Ozarks was in November. It was just before quail and deer season opened. The white bass were running so Jim Peck and I loaded up with 1/8 ounce white jigs and silver spoons and headed out.

The first cast, after stopping at a rocky point, produced a 3/4 pound white crappie. We dropped anchor and went on to take 17 more nice crappie, 11 white bass and a three pound walleye in about two hours fishing.

After moving on to a small cove, we tried silver spoons and found the largemouths ready. In about two more hours, we had taken five fish over four pounds including one six pounder. All of those fish hit harder than any I took all summer-- another reason for fall fishing in the "Show Me State."

All Missouri major lakes provide excellent fall and winter angling. Table Rock has led the list in winter fishing with strings of big bass caught through December. We know one angler who spends Christmas holidays fishing for big bass and several times his Christmas present has been landing a lunder weighing over seven pounds.

Other Missouri lakes for some good cold weather fishing are: Taneycomo for trout, walleye and bass; Pomme de Terre for crappie, bass and muskie; Stockton for northern pike and bass; Bull Shoals for bass; Clearwater and Wappapello for crappie and bass.

Fall and winter angling has a lot of advantages including the lack of competition with boaters, no bugs, bigger fish, many docks are open all year and something that appeals to a lot of anglers-- the fishing is as good if not better at 10 a.m. so you don't have to get up before sunrise.

While fall is fine for the fishermen, it's also great for the hunter. There's quite a variety of game in Missouri including some of the best waterfowl shooting found anywhere.

Summer, Missouri is known as the "Wild Goose Capital of the World" because of the heavy concentration of Canada geese in and around the Swan Lake National Wildlife Refuge.

Each fall tens of thousands of these majestic birds stop at the Swan Lake and the state's Fountain Grove area. Hunting is permitted within the refuges by hunters who draw for blinds at area headquarters.

Just as Swan Lake hosts thousands of Canadas, Squaw Creek Federal Refuge near Mound City is a heaven for as many snow and blue geese. Squaw Creek is located in the northwest part of the state and is also a hot spot for mallards.

Waterfowl hunting ranges from Squaw Creek in the north to Duck Creek in the south with the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers and a host of good pot holes and lakes in between.

If you're after bigger game, Missouri has that, too. The fall forecast is encouraging for the whitetail deer hunter. The bow hunter season started Oct. 1 and continues through Dec. 31. Last season, archers took 780 deer in Missouri. For the gunner, the season opens Nov. 18 and closes November 26.

With the exception of the Bootheel area, deer hunters will have what amounts to two opening days. During the first part of the season, bucks only can be shot but for the last weekend, any deer will be legal.

Missouri had a record kill last season when some 170,000 hunters took over 30,000 deer. Texas county led the state in total kills last year with Benton and Howell close behind. Each had well over 1,000 deer shot.

Missouri has record whitetails. One of the big bucks taken in north Missouri in 1969, scored 199 4/8 in the Boone and Crockett Big Game Club. It was the fourth largest typical whitetail rack in American big game hunting history.

Usually the largest deer come from north Missouri while the heavy kill areas are in the southern part of the state.

Small game hunting is rated good statewide with the squirrel and rabbit population up and another good quail hunt predicted.

Everyone wants the edge and for the sportsman in Missouri, fall provides it. At a time when Mother Nature is putting on a colorful show in the Missouri hills, the lunkers are waiting for the angler and the game is in the fields. What more could you ask?

LARRY GIBSON, Moberly deer hunter, poses with the rack which set a new Missouri typical white-tailed deer record when it scored 201 5/8 Boone and Crockett points. The rack may be a national leader when official scoring is released.

Trophy Hunters Gather

COLUMBIA — Missouri's upcoming gun deer season (Nov. 18-26 should have this minor but interesting statistic -- of each 10,000 hunters in the woods, one will take a trophy buck large enough to qualify him for membership in the Show Me Big Bucks Club.

The club held its fifth annual banquet Oct. 7 here with about 170 present. There now are 178 members in the club, founded in 1968 to honor those who claim animals with racks large enough to exceed rigorous minimum standards.

South of the Missouri river, it takes a buck with a rack measuring 140 Boone and Crockett points, while it takes one with 150 points north of the River.

Each year, the club honors the hunters who took the largest typical and non-typical racks in the state the preceding season.

This year's banquet had a unique distinction in that both racks also were new state records. Larry Gibson, Moberly, downed a white-tailed buck in Randolph County last season that scored 201 5/8 points -- a new typical whitetailed record.

The score beat the old mark of 199 4/8, set in 1969 by Jeff Brunk of Kirksville -- and Brunk's deer led the nation, so Gibson's deer probably will do the same when Boone and Crockett announces its official measurements for 1971.

Kenneth Lee, Rock Port, downed a buck in 1964 that wasn't measured until last year when it scored 208 7/8 non-typical points for a new state record. Young Lee now is in the Army in Germany, but his father, Charles, was at the banquet to accept the award.

Second place typical rack was taken by 14-year-old Robin Berhorst of Memphis. It scored 187 2/8. Vernon Sowers, Brunswick, was second in the non-typical division with a 203 5/8 point rack he took in 1953 which wasn't measured until last year.

Series Bets

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)— Gov. Ronald Reagan is betting two bottles of California wine against a bushel of sweet corn that the Oakland A's will take the World Series from the Cincinnati Reds.

The governor made the bet Friday, responding to a telegraphed challenge from Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan.

Reagan described his wager as "two bottles of California's finest wines, a delightful Chablis and a Burgundy that is second to none."

Gilligan is taking "a bushel of sweet corn, the nation's best."

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— The mayors of Cincinnati and Oakland have put up some unusual stakes in a bet on the World Series.

Cincinnati Mayor Thomas Luken wagered a case of Cincinnati- produced Ivory soap against Oakland Mayor John Reading's offer of a year's rides on the Bay Area Rapid Transit System.

The two bet on the respective teams in heir cities during a telephone conversation Friday.

---

Roberto Clemente of the Pittsburgh Pirates won his first National League batting title in 1961, hitting .351. He won three more after that. He was the World Series star last year.

Willie Mays won one National League batting title. In 1954 he led the league with .345.

---

The New York Mets won the 1969 World Series. It was the first year of two 12-team leagues.

Two Young Men On the Way Back

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)

The two young men had been on heroin and now were in a therapeutic house in the Washington area learning to break the habit.

They were quite impressive, both of them. They seemed to be on the way. Talking with them was the sort of experience that gave you hope.

The secret of their progress seemed to lie in a few simple things. They lived under stringent, rigid rules which they knew they could not break. They knew the penalties for violations, and they knew these penalties would be enforced. They had definite responsibilities and there was no shying away from those responsibilities.

When it was necessary, they were dressed down like they had never been dressed down in their lives. They could leave if they couldn't take it. They lived in absolute honesty.

No one in the house they stay in minced any words about what they thought about what anyone else in the house was doing, or how he did it. In return, the two young men did not shy away from absolute frankness in saying what they thought about the other young men and women in the house — to their faces.

But there were rules as to when that could be done too.

They had been, they said, young men who insisted on doing what they wanted to do when they wanted to do it. They hadn't at home, at school or at work, wanted to be told to do anything — and certainly not by a time schedule. They hadn't had responsibility.

Now they were living with all these things. And liking it.

But they were having trouble with the outside world. Outside people they had contact witn (their parents) found it difficult to deal with their frankness.

They weren't certain why they'd gone on dope. Neither one blamed his parents. Neither knew what his parents could have done. One thought perhaps his mother had been too easy on him, hadn't given him enough responsibility. Maybe, he said, she had given him too much money to spend and not asked enough of him. His stepfather had tried to interest him in his business, but he didn't respond.

Now, when he's cured, he wants to go into his stepfather's business, learn the trade. He thinks he was a child. He is certain he's slowly growing up now and can take it.

The other young man, a black, said he had been very close to his parents. They went everyplace together, not because he was forced to, but because he liked being with them.

But he was bored with school, began hanging around with other young dropout types, drifted into dope when the others invited him.

What would have kept him in school? He doesn't know, but did mention he'd wanted to write poetry but was afraid to mention it to his teachers because it might make people think he wasn't manly enough.

There was no doubt this young man was growing up too. But it seemed he was somewhat concerned about what he would do when he left the house. He didn't want to go back to his old friends, the ones he'd gotten in trouble with. That could lead to the same old problem over again. But how would he relate to straight people who hadn't had the experiences he'd been through? What would they talk about or do together?

There are certainly no general conclusions to be drawn about the drug problem from these talks with just two young men. But the fact that both came from very different family situations and viewed their own reasons for turning to drugs in very different ways is a suggestion of the complexity of this "disease" and a reason it has been so difficult to eradicate.

The difference between a brain and a computer can be expressed in a single word: complexity. The large mammalian brain is the most complicated thing, for its size, known to us. The human brain weighs three pounds, but in that three pounds are ten billion neurons and a hundred billion smaller cells. Even the most complicated computer man has yet built can't compare in intricacy with the brain. Can a computer think? That depends on what you mean by "think." If solving a mathematical problem is "thinking," then a computer can "think" and do so much faster than a man. But how long will it take to build a computer complex enough to duplicate the human brain? Perhaps not as long as some thing!

The Case Of The Constant Victim

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Looey was a taxi driver with a predilection for accidents. If he had one while sound asleep in bed, it would have surprised no one, not even his nervous boss. But the funny thing about it, the accidents were never Looey's fault. Yet he'd end up right smack in the middle of them. And while he always had presence of mind, absence of body would have been better since he never missed getting hurt.

The result? Looey's boss finally fired him.

"You're a great guy," his boss told him. "You're hard working, you're bright and you don't goof off. But it just can't go on. With your knack for getting into accidents, one day you're going to get killed and I'm going to lose my business.

Trudging over to the unemployment bureau with a heavy heart, Looey reluctantly applied for unemployment benefits.

"Sorry, Mac," he was told. "But you were fired. Anyone who's fired for cause isn't entitled to unemployment benefits.'.

"I wasn't fired because I didn't do my job," protested Looey. "I was bounced so that my boss could have some peace of mind. He worried about me. He also worried about having to maintain a charge account for me at all the local hospitals."

Denied benefits, Looey took his claim to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit accident prone Looey to collect unemployment benefits?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a person is not disqualified from receiving unemployment benefits unless he is unemployed due to willfulness or misconduct, which does not include carelessness. In this case, concluded the judge, Looey was fired because he was accident prone and not because of any willful act of misconduct on his part.

(Based upon a 1964 Conn. Superior Court Decision)

Urges Safety Measures

JEFFERSON CITY — Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, urges motorists to turn on their headlights at dusk for added safety.

"The hours of dusk create visibility hazards to drivers," Hockaday pointed out. "Sharp line and color contrasts which make objects readily visible in the daytime are not easily seen at dusk. Studies have shown that cars with headlights on are seen better not only at dusk but even during the hours of daylight.

"I urge drivers to turn on their low beam headlights during the hours of dusk so that other drivers can be more aware of their presence on the highway."

The patrol superintendent stated that it doesn't cost anymore to operate a vehicle by having its headlights turned on at dusk or any other time. He also pointed out that parking lights do little good in helping a car to be seen moving down a highway. Headlights, not parking lights, should be used at twilight.

"The shorter hours of daylight during this time of the year will catch many motorists on the road at dusk," Hockaday continued. "I urge them to turn their headlights on low beam so they can better be seen by others and thus add to their own safety during this period."

The Prayer from The Upper Room

Ye are all the children of light, and the children of day: we are not of the night, nor of the darkness. (I Thessalonians 5:5)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, accept our gratitude for sharing with us Your own nature as revealed to us in Your Son Jesus. Grant that all we do may reflect His light in our lives. Help us as we try to live in the faith and hope expressed in the prayer Jesus taught us: "Our Father who are in heaven ... Amen."

Blind St. Louisan Is TV Newscaster

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Some daytime television viewers in St. Louis have been wondering why the news anchorman on KPLR-TV wears sunglasses during his three daily newscasts.

Those bold enough to call the station are told that anchorman John Weidlich is blind.

"They want to know if he's some kind of weirdo," says News Director Bill Addison. "When we tell them John is blind, the reaction is good."

Weidlich, 26, joined the station in February as a news writer, editor and coassignment editor, and his goal was to become an on-the-air newscaster.

He got his chance in September when the station inaugurated a 2½-hour varietytalk show in the morning and he now has three five-minute news shows each morning.

"This all happened a lot faster than I ever thought it would, and I'm awfully grateful that the station was willing to take a chance with me," said Weidlich, who holds two degrees in English from St. Louis University, as well as a Phi Beta Kappa key.

"it was a chance, first, because I've never done on-theair work before, so there's a certain lack of experience. And second, of course, is taking the chance on the unfamiliar concept of a blind newscaster," he said.

General Manager Jim Herd says he doesn't feel the station has taken any chances by using Weidlich on the air. "His performance ever since he joined our station has been phenomenal," Herd said.

The only special procedure for Weidlich's newscasts is that two separate sets of stories are assembled—one in braille for Weidlich and another in regular type for the producer. The station also uses a finger-snap cue rather than the traditional hand wave to signal that he is on the air.

Weidlich also makes telephone calls to police departments in the St. Louis area to keep up-to-date on the latest happeneings and takes reports from the station's other newsmen in the field by radio phone.

He takes the information on his braille writer and then transcribes it on a typewriter into scripts for use on news programs.

Weidlich says an obvious handicap in his work is that he is unable to read news wire copy or stories written by other newsmen, but the station is going to solve that problem soon.

Addison says his station is getting a device which reads printed material on paper and transorms it into raised letters which a blind person can feel with the tips of his fingers.

Weidlich spent 13 years as a child at the St. Louis School for the Blind, and he learned more than reading, writing and arithmetic while he was there.

Among other things, he learned to play the piano and now heads a three-man blind band, which occasionally plays at dances and weddings. The combo is called the "Soul Seers," a name picked up from a plaque at the school which says: "It is the soul that sees."

Weidlich was prepared to be a teacher when he left St. Louis University, but instead tried for a job in television.

"There are some professions that the blind are supposed to go into," he said in explaining his decision. "There's a campaign to get blind people to go to college, but there are many professions closed to the blind. This field was a challenge, and there was someone to give me a chance.

Indians Hope To Settle Accounts Of Broken Treaties

By RICHARD J. OLIVE
Associated Press Writer

Three auto carvans are midway along the "Trail of Broken Treaties" to Washington, where they hope thousands of American Indians will assemble to demand a settling of accounts by the federal government.

Brainchild of the American Indian Movement (AIM), the demonstration includes a call for President Nixon and Sen. George McGovern to meet with the Indians between Nov. 1 and7 "and expound upon their psotions affecting the Native American People."

AIM says it expects "100,000 Indians from every state in the union will converge on the white House." It feels this could be the prophetic "time when all the Indian nations would come together ... in a common new awakening."

The hope discussed at Denver Oct. 1-2 when the dramatization was planned by 40 to 50 persons was that Indians would join the caravans, "whether they be living in abandoned cars, tarpaper shacks or on the streets."

Nearly two weeks after beginning the journey from Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle, the caravans number about 200 persons.

AIM chapters at cities along the routes were directed to make arrangements for rallies so the travelers could explain their action.

At Wichita, Kan., Tuesday, Vernon Bellecourt, Denver AIM director, and others in the caravan of 12 cars were greeted by some 45 students and local Indians.

Bellecourt told the small assembly at Wichita State University if 371 treaties were enforced, there would be some drastic changes for the Indian.

For example, he said, Phoenix, Ariz., was built completely on "stolen Pima Indian land, which they have never been paid for." Then Bellecourt and the caravan set out on a threehour ride to Lawrence, Kan., hoping for better support there because of the presence of Haskell Indian Junior College.

Further north, the San Francisco and Seattle contingents met at the Sioux reservation at Pine Ridge, S.D., then moved on to Wounded Knee, S.D., for religious ceremonies Tuesday night.

Their guiding light is the preamble penned at Denver.

"We, the Native People of this hemisphere" is the phrase introducing seven demands. They include a call for "congressional legislation that will remove Indian affairs from the natural resource Department of the Interior and establish a Federal Indian Commission responsible directly to the President.

"We urge that within the provisions of this new legislation full consideration be given to the proposals submitted by the Indian leadership ... "

The group also wants the government to fulfill its treaty obligations, place Indians on an equitable level with the "everyincreasing affluent society," and grant education opportunities emphasizing professional fields.

A spokesman at AIM headquarters in Washington said caravans will start later in the month from Winnipeg, Montreal and Ottawa in Canada, where the effort has drawn the endorsement of the 250,000member National Indian Brotherhood.

Other caravans are to leave from Los Angeles, San Francisco and Portland, Ore., he said.

The first three caravans, which had stops scheduled at 75 cities, have encountered "a lot of people who want to go, but can't leave their jobs or school now and will catch up in Washington," the spokesman said.

All of the caravans, except those from Ottawa and Montreal, are expected to be represented at AIM's convention at Minneapolis, beginning Sunday.

Isn't the estimate of 100,000 Indians rallying in Washington optimistic?

Dowd Now Against Lottery

ST. LOUIS — Edward L. Dowd, Democratic candidate for Governor, told Missouri Press Association that he has resolved the question about the state lottery, and is now convinced that the state government should not be supported by a lottery or any other form of legalized gambling.

"I have seriously considered all pros and cons concerning a state lottery and have concluded that the negative aspects definitely outweigh the positive," Dowd explained.

"Gambling in any form is not a proper way to support a government," Dowd continued, "because it encourages organized crime to enter Missouri and takes money from those who can afford it least. Our state government, after reorganization, can be adequately financed through present sources and federal revenue sharing."

Dowd expressed total opposition to adding a sales tax on gasoline as an answer to our revenue problems. "Bond's tax on gasoline," he said, "would hit the family budgets of people of poor and moderate means who are already shouldering a heavy tax burden."

"Operating an automobile today is a necessity for most Missourians in going to and from work," Dowd concluded. "To further tax the operation of automobiles is grossly unfair and unnecessary for the operation of the programs Missouri needs."

Poplar Bluff All-America City Finalist

INDIANAPOLIS — Twenty-one finalists in the 24th All-America Cities award competition, including Poplar Bluff, Mo., were announced by The Saturday Evening Post, co-sponsor of the award program with the National Municipal League.

The names of the winning cities will be announced early in 1973.

The announcement Monday said the 21 finalists will present their cases before a 12-member jury headed by Dr. George Gallup, head of the league's council. The jury includes leaders in government, education and business.

The finalists will make their presentations Nov. 26-29 during the league's 78th National Conference on Government in Minneapolis, Minn.

Major activities covered in the entry from Poplar Bluff were charter change, senior citizen housing, recreation program and industrial park.

Four Hurt On SeMo Highways

Two traffic accidents Wednesday resulted in minor injuries to four persons on area roads, according to the highway patrol.

At the junction of Highway 60 and Brown Spur Road near Sikeston at 1 p.m., a two-ton truck driven by Wilfred Ressel, 49, of Cape Girardeau failed to yield the right of way and pulled into the path of a two-ton truck driven by Randell Barham, 37, of B .livar.

Ressel received minor injuries but was not hospitalized. Barham was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston for treatment of face and head cuts. A passenger in the Barham truck, Donald Hinkle, 33, of Bolivar, sustained cuts and a possible fractured jaw and was also treated at MDCH.

A two-vehicle accident at 5 p.m. in Portageville at the corner of Fifth and Hoffman Streets resulted in minor injuries to Janet Harris, 16, who received cuts and minor bruises, and Audrey Harris, 9, who sustained face cuts. Both were taken to Pemiscot County Hospital in Hayti for treatment.

The accident occurred when the Harris car failed to stop at a stop sign and drove into the path of a pickup truck driven by James Blowers, 26, of Portageville.

For New Expenditure Plan

Extra $500,000 Needed

The city will need an additional $500,000 a year income if all proposals included in the expenditure-revenue study are adopted, City Manager Jim Huff told the Lions Club Wednesday.

The study, now being reviewed by the planning zoning commission, is an attempt to spell out what it needed in the city, and how the necessary funds can be made available.

Revenus sharing will bring in nearly $200,000 of the needed funds, Huff said. The revenue sharing bill has been passed by Congress and will soon be signed by President Richard Nixon.

Total fund sources for the city through taxes, fee increases and licenses are more than $700,000.

If the revenue-expenditure program were adopted, the city would need an additional $293,000 a year in operating funds and—$1.5 million for capital expenditures. The capital expenditures would mean annual payments of $126,000 in interest and $109,000 for costs not financed by bonds, Huff said.

The planning and zoning commission is listing proposals in the order of their importance. Price tags will be placed on each proposal. Then the city will decide what it wants and what it can afford.

The study covers public safety, recreation facilities and programs,—roadways and and sanitation.

Scouting Serves 686 Girls In Sikeston Area

Cotton Boll Area Girl Scout Council has been allocated $8,000 from the Sikeston United Fund goal of $46, 347.

The Cotton Boll, which operates in nine counties, has a budget of $42,762.07 for 1973, and is asking for a quota of $42,900 from United Fund drives in each town in the area.

The nine counties in the Cotton Boll Council are Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid, Stoddard, Pemiscot, Dunkling, Butler, Ripley and Carter.

A breakdown of the budget includes:

Salaries- three professional workers and one clerical worker, $26,287;

Staff compensations—Social Security, retirement, group medical and life insurance, $3,419.

Bookkeeping and tax services— annual audit, $1,310; office supplies—$600; telephone— $700; commercial printing— $400; postage—$800.

Transportation for professional staff— $800; council- owned auto upkeep and one- third trade—$1,600.

Promotional supplies—$1,000; training— $450; program— $830; conference and course attendance for volunteers and professional workers—$1,000.

Rent for council office—$1,500; fees— safe deposit and post office box rentals,—$66; insurance— day camp equipment, workman's compensation, office contents, camera equipment and auto, $900; maintenance, repairs, new office equipment— $700; unemployment insurance—$400.

There are 3,504 girls in scouting in the Cotton Boll Council with Sikeston having one- fifth of the total membership.

Sikeston has 31 troops with a total of 686 girls in scouting. This means that scouting reaches an estimated one of every three girls between the ages of seven and 17 in Sikeston.

When the United Fund goal is not reached in each town, the council must have other means of meeting its budget.

Additional revenue is provided through sustaining memberships. A sustaining member of the Cotton Boll Council contributes a special gift of $100 or more. Eighty-four individuals or firms are currently enrolled in this program.

The council board of directors reserves the right of sustaining membership enrollment to bridge the gap between actual needs and a rightful and just portion of the council budget as determined by the Girl Scout finance committee.

The council also receives financing through a trust fund.

Miss Ilena Aslin is executive director of the Cotton Boll Council with offices in Sikeston.

Thieu Restates His Opposition To A Coalition

SAIGON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger conferred twice today with President Nguyen Van Thieu, and Thieu's Information Ministry said the president had once again stated his opposition to a coalition government including the Communists.

President Nixon's chief foreign policy adviser and the South Vietnamese president reviewed Kissinger's secret peace negotiations in Paris for 3½ hours in the morning at a meeting attended by 13 other high- level U.S. and Vietnamese officials.

Kissinger and U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker returned in the late afternoon for another session with Thieu.

There was no official word or leak from the U.S. side of what was being said. But a spokesman for the South Vietnamese government, Vu Khanh, read this communique at the Information Ministry's daily news briefing:

"Political observers in Saigon remarked that at the arrival of the American delegation in Saigon, President Nguyen Van Thieu continues to meet with representatives of the Senate and the Lower House, the Supreme Court and various political parties and reasserted our firm position never to accept a tripartite proposal or any other political solution which has not been agreed upon by the people of South Vietnam through democratic means."

Khanh said the communique was sent to him at 10 a.m., midway through the first meeting between Kissinger and Thieu, and he was ordered to read it at the evening briefing.

He said he did not know why the communique attributed its information to "political observers" instead of an official government agency. But newsmen considered it a device for Thieu to make his position public without breaking any pledge of secrecy he might have given the Americans.

Police Seek Man Using Other's Name

A warrant will soon be issued for the arrest of Billy Wayne Coleman, who will be charged with using the name of Howard L. Chapman of Oran when arrested for driving while intoxicated Saturday.

Police found out today that Chapman was not the man they arrested.

Pros. Atty. Tom Gilmore said a warrant is already outstanding against Coleman for concealing mortgaged property. Gilmore said Coleman was not carrying a driver's license when arrested and gave Chapman's name to the police.

Coleman posted bond and left town. Gilmore said Coleman is believed to be either in Tennessee or Mississippi.

415 Absentee Ballots Mailed

Of the 415 mailed, Kielhofner has received 139 back, including 37 civil ballots and 102 war ballots.

Applications are still being taken for absentee ballots, which must be returned to Kielhofner's office no later than Nov. 6.

Temps Plunge On Heels Of Rain Storm

Flash floods failed to materialize in Southeast Missouri Wednesday, but heavy rains fell throughout the day.

Weather officials said today that if the rain continues in areas west and north of Cape Girardeau, some flooding may be expected in the next day or two.

The heavy rains covered most of the 75- mile area around Sikeston. The rest of the state recorded normal rainfall amounts. St. Louis reported .06 inch, Ste. Genevieve only a drizzle and West Plains reported .29 inch.

With the rain came chilly, winter- like weather and overcast skies. The high of 51 degrees recorded Wednesday was 29 degrees below Monday's 80- degree mark, and Monday's low of 55 was four degrees higher than Wednesday's high.

Burlison Denies Any Irregularities

Congressman Bill Burlison of Cape Girardeau has denied a report by the political lobby group, Common Cause, that his statement of campaign contributions and expenditures contained irregularities.

Burlison is seeking re-election in the 10th District.

Common Cause questions the figures released by Burlison and said the Democratic congressman declined to reply to the group's request for a disclosure of money raised before April 7, the day a new campaign disclosure law went into effect.

Burlison said the Common Cause report was erronous. He said any discrepancies in his financial statement were unintentional and harmless.

Burlison said the report was no more critical of his statement than it was of his opponent, M. Francis Svendrowski, a Farmington Republican.

Burlison also said he had released the names of persons who contributed to his campaign prior to the April 7 deadline.

Common Cause disagreed with the financial statements provided by two groups -- the Burlison for Congress Committee and the 10th District Burlison for Congress Committee.

The two groups said Burlison's receipts from Jan. 1 through Sept. 10 totaled $20,539.24 and that cash on hand as of Sept. 10 was

THE INFLATION ISSUE

Inflation, the basic "pocketbook" issue in any national political campaign, may well come to the fore in the final two weeks of the Nixon - McGovern contest. The Labor Department is scheduled to release its final pre-election report on consumer prices on Friday, Oct. 20, and both parties are sure to analyze the data with an eye to electoral gain.

The report, reflecting consumer prices in September, will be taken as a measure of President Nixon's success in bringing inflation under control. Nixon's announced target is to reduce inflation to an annual rate of 2 to 3 per cent by the end of 1972. If recent trends continue, the goal will be reached — presumably blunting the Democrats' last-minute drive for votes. Last month's consumer price index reported that August prices were 2.9 per cent higher than a year earlier, when Nixon first imposed wage-price controls, compared with a rise of 4.4 per cent in the 12 months before that.

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, says food prices have risen by 3.7 per cent in the past year and meat prices by 11.6 per cent. But he insists that "the American people are better fed, and for a lower proportion of their income, then ever before." At least one housewife finds fault with Stein's appraisal. "Here we are, spending more and more and getting less, but the Nixon economists are optimistic," complains Bernice Davidson of New York (New York Times, Sept. 29). The administration will continue to radiate optimism, at least until election day, in the hope that some of it will rub off on the nation's voters.

Quick Burial Needed
For Burlison Amendment

Congressman Bill D. Burlison of Cape Girardeau is busying himself in Washington these days trying to change the Consititution's Bill of Rights.

We suppose he is within his rights as a Congressman to do so, but we think the nation could well do without his services in this regard.

Claiming he is doing it because of the Jack Anderson column about Senator Thomas Eagleton, the Congressman wants to amend the First Amendment, which guarantees freedom of the press.

For those who have forgotten their high school civics classes, the First Amendment to the Constitution states: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of thepeople peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances."

This is part of the Bill of Rights, which has been in effect since it was approved by the First Congress and by the States in 1791.

Under the Burlison version, the First Amendment would still guarantee freedom of the press . . . Except that public officials would have the right to recover civil damages or to impose criminal penalties on anyone who defames them.

Any fair-minded American must look with disgust at columnist Anderson's mud-slinging in the Eagleton case. He has been soundly condemned by most responsible elements in the nation's press.

However, putting the Burlison clause in the Constitution would be throwing away a great treasure along with the trash. Once established, the precedent of writing exceptions into the Bill of Rights could lead down the path of totalitarisnism—and, Lord knows, we don't need to move any farther or faster in that direction.

Over a long period the nation's Courts have held that the press must be free to print what it sees fit to print. The libel laws have been held to protect private citizens against untrue assaults on their character by the press.

However, recent decisions have held that public officials, or persons in the public eye, cannot win a libel judgement unless the newspaper used "reckless disregard for the truth" in writing and printing its stories. This is what bothers our Congressman.

We believe that the Courts remain the best protection of the rights of the public person againse defamation of character. In the Eagleton case, for example, the Senator could take columnist Anderson to Court with a good chance of collecting damages for Anderson's reckless and unwarranted attack on his good name. At least a trial would afford the Senator a public forum for setting the record straight.

We cannot agree with Mr. Burlison, that public figures need additional protection against the press. For every politician who has been unjustly injured by a member of the press , there are dozens whose illegal or immoral activities have been exposed to public scrutiny by a journalist protected by the First Amendment.

Take away any part of that protection, make the press afraid to print the truth about politicians due to fear of legal action (including criminal proceedings), and you have taken away one of people's last remaining checks on their political system.

No, Congressman, your proposed Amendment deserves a Quick and permanent burial.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things we could all do without:

People who say, "I told you so."

People who say, "If I were you, I'd—."

People who laugh at other people for wearing toupees. (editor's note: Boyle must be getting ready to buy one himself.)

Puppy love after 40.

Dogs that would rather bite than bark.

The wave of the future. (It's all most of us can do to keep 9ur noses above water at high tide now.)

Pretty girls who, no matter what you suggest, say, "That's a no-no."

The fatalistic attitude that our present highway mortality toll is simply a necessary price that has to be paid for progress.

Mankind's habit of going to war just to kill time.

Lazy housewives who spend most of the afternoon watching soap operas on television, then rush to the supermarket and crowd it more at a time when people who have worked all day are trying to do their shopping.

Middle-aged tenors at cocktail parties who wait until midnight to prove that they can sing all the stanzas of "Sweet Adeline" without making a mistake.

Snow before Thanksgiving.

Rain on Easter Sunday.

Twins who think it's cute to dress alike after they are 18.

Husbands and wives who, at any age, think it is cute to dress alike.

People so proper that they become shocked and upset if they see a baby lick its runny nose.

Meaningless baseball statistics, such as, "This is the first time in World Series history that a left-handed shortstop with asthma was caught trying to steal second base in the fifth inning of the second game—although, of course, as everyone probably can readily recall, it has happened to five—yes, five—right-handed catchers with varicose veins."

Snobs, blobs and slobs.

Any more postcards of the Grand Canyon, the Eiffel Tower or the Taj Mahal by moonlight.

Letters from stockbrokers that look as if they hold dividend checks but contain only "come-on" prospectuses.

Any more young bushy-haired singers who, it is promised, "will steal away Elvis Presley's place in your heart."

Any new kind of pop top cans that can't be opened except with the help of a pair of pliers.

Canned cat food that even a dog won't eat.

Bus drivers who steer as if their ambition were to throw every passenger to the floor at least once during a trip.

Imitation champagne imitation jewelry, imitation minds— and mock turtle soup.

From these and many other nuisances and annoyances, deliver us. Amen.

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — The efforts of President Nixon's dirty- tricks crew to disrupt and discredit the Democrats, say investigators, were carefully coordinated inside the White House. The political sabotage had these objectives:

1. When Sen. Ed Muskie pulled ahead of the President in the polls last year, worried White House aides sought to trip up the popular Maine Democrat. Muskie has complained that he was a victim of a "systematic campaign of sabotage." Some of the dirty tricks, including the forged "Canuck letter" which made it appear he condoned a racial slur, caused him serious political damage and contributed to his poor showing in the presidential primaries.

2. The political strategists in the White House concluded that George Wallace as a third-party candidate would tkae votes away from the President but as a Democratic contender could cause mischief for the Democrats. The White House, therefore, encouraged the Alabama governor to seek the Democratic nomination and worked undercover to help roll up votes for him in the Democratic primaries. In the crucial Florida primary, Sen. Henry Jackson contended with Wallace for conservative Democratic votes. Jackson tells us his campaign was hampered by political sabotage, not unlike the dirty tricks played on Muskie.

3. The White House strategists considered George McGovern to be the easiest contender for the President to beat. They sought, therefore, to help McGovern win the California primary, which sewed up the Democratic nomination for him. McGovern's chief rival, Hubert Humphrey told us his campaign in California was often fouled up. But except for a phony press release put out on his letterhead, Humphrey said he had no evidence of political sabotage. "I have to take some credit for the foul-ups myself," he said.

HUNT'S 'ATTACK'

4. Once McGovern was nominated, the White House objective was to portray McGovern as a radical and to link him with irresponsible elements who favored political violence. A Washington Post source claims White House aide Howard Hunt tried to organize "an attack" by demonstrators in McGovern's name upon the Doral Beach Hotel, which served as President Nixon's convention headquarters at Miami Beach. Subsequent to the conventions, McGovern's campaign has been subjected to political harassment. His national coordinator, Frank Mankiewicz, gave us some examples.

White House sources tell us that the President's chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman, was the key man who coordinated the efforts to hamstring Muskie, boost Wallace and abet McGovern's nomination. Although there is no direct documentary link between Haldeman and the sabotage squad, he issued instructions and received reports on all phases of the campaign.

Presidential appointments secretary Dwight Chapin, who has been linked by hthe Washington Post to the sabotage operation, worked closely with Haldeman, say our sources. White House aide Gordon Strachan, whom Time magazine claims was also involved with the dirty- tricks department, is a member of Haldeman's staff.

Perhaps the most irresponsible of the dirty tricks was a reported attempt to shut off the runway lights on a small field in northern Florida where Senator Jackson planned to land. The senator received a report that someone had phoned the airport to cancel arrangements for lighting the runway. The call was countermanded, however, in time to prevent a serious accident to Jackson and his party.

WRONG TOWN

Muskie also had flight trouble, according to the Washington Post. On a charter flight from California to Oregon, the pilot followed false instructions and brought Muskie down for an unscheduled stop in Salem, Ore.

One of the dirtiest tricks was the circulation of a phony flyer on Muskie's stationery, accusing Jackson and Humphrey of illicit sexual affairs. This hurt Muskie at the same time that it smeared his two Democratic rivals. Jackson asked the U.S. Attorney's office in Tampa, where the smear sheet was mailed, to investigate whether this violated the federal laws against anonymous political mailings. But so far, Jackson has received no answer.

Muskie encountered his worst harassment during the New Hampshire primary where phony calls and statements were made in his name. Jackson had his worst time in Florida. Someone broke into his headquarters in Miami, for example, and stole a taped endorsement by ex- Senator Harry Cain. It was too late to get Cain to tape another endorsement for use on the eve of the primary.

Like Muskie in New Hampshire, Jackson in Florida also had trouble with callers who attempted to disrupt his campaign schedule. False reports would be put out at campaign stops that he wasn't coming. At Bethune-Cookman College in Daytona Beach, for example, a false report almost sent the audience home before his speech.

CALL TO MEANY

Once it was clear McGovern would be the nominee, he suddenly became the victim of dirty tricks. Someone impersonating Gary Hart, for example, telephoned AFL-CIO President George Meany and virtually ordered him to meet McGovern in New York City the following morning. Needless to say, the furious Meany never showed up and still refuses to endorse McGovern.

Similar calls were made to Jersey City labor leaders telling them to appear at a rally that had never been scheduled for vice presidential nominee Sargent Shriver.

Other mysterious callers, claiming to be Hart, have told newsmen: "We are not Democrats. We are McGovernites." One of the Republican campaign objectives, it happens, is to portray McGovern supporters as McGovernites rather than Democrats.

No less than TV commentator Walter Cronkite has heard from a Hart imitator. The seasoned Cronkite, however, quickly tagged the caller as a phony.

The full story of dirty campaign tricks by both sides should be explored by a nonpartisan commission before the Novemoer election.

TAXES, INFLATION SHRINK WORKER'S PAY HIKES

A man earing $10,000 a year in 1966 subsequently got raises adding up to 30 per cent until, in 1972, he was making $13,000. But, says Tax Foundation, Inc., higher taxes and inflation have so cut into his higher wage that in 1972 it actually buys him $119 less than his $10,000 salary in 1966.

At a higher point in the salary scale, the research organization points out, a purchasing power loss of almost $2,000 is suffered by the man whose salary rose from $50,000 to $65,000 over the 1966-1972 span and has had his new affluence nicked by inflation and taxes.

Here is a breakdown, showing (for a family of four with one member working) the salary in each of the two years; the increase in Federal and state income taxes and Social Security taxes; the loss in Aftertax income due to inflation; and the net change in purchashing power:

| Salary 1966 | 1972 | Incr. Taxes '66-'72 | Los to Inflation. | Net Change, Purch. Power |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| $10,000 | 13,000 | $ 698 | $2,421 | $ 119 |
| 20,000 | 26,000 | 1,660 | 4,620 | 270 |
| 30,000 | 39,000 | 3,157 | 6,542 | 699 |
| 40,000 | 52,000 | 4,968 | 8,247 | 1,215 |
| 50,000 | 65,000 | 6,917 | 9,783 | 1,700 |

The man whose income rose from $10,000 to $13,000 over the 1966-72 period, the Foundation points out, had exemptions of $2,400 in the former year and of $3,000 in 1972. In 1966, his deductions ($1,890) plus his exemptions gave him a taxable income of $5,710.

His income and payroll taxes in 1966 totaled $1,295: Gederal income tax, $945; state income tax, $73; and Social Security tax, $277. His after-tax income thus became $8,705.

In income and payroll taxes in 1966 totaled $1,295: Federal income tax, $945; state income tax, $73; and Social Security tax, $277. His after-tax income thus became $8,705.

In 1972, now earning $13,000 the man's exemptions ($3,000), plus his $2,065 deductions, give him a taxable income of $7,935. In 1972, his taxes total $1,993: Federal income, $1,368; state income, $157; and Social Security taxes, $468. His 1972 after tax income is calculated by the Foundation to be $11,007.

The research organization estimates the rate of inflation over thyperiod at 28 per cent. This cuts the man's 1972 after tax income by an estimated $2,421, making its effective worth $8,586 — or $119 less than his undeflated, after-tax income of $8,705 in 1966.

AND HOW DO YOUR ORCHIDS GROW? Better with soap and water? Believe it or not, chemists at the University of California are investigating the beneficial effects of detergents on the growth of orchids seedling tissues. Who said soap suds aren't exotic!!

Other gardening experts tell us that you should always treat any seedlings with care and cleanliness. Apparently it's important to prevent infecting healthy young plants— to say nothing of the gardener—after handling any diseased plants. So, always wash hands thoroughly before handling seedlings, and also use fresh, clean water to dampen the flats.

A BARGAIN FOR THE SOVIETS

It is clear now that the communists drove a very good bargain for themselves during the recently completed wheat sale.

Because of mismanagement of farm equipment and some peculiar weather, the Russian wheat crop this year was more than 20 per cent less than last year. A crop failure of this magnitude would mean severe shortages which could have led to uprisings among the people against the government. There was only one place the Soviet Union could go to buy the wheat needed to ensure their continued hold over the people, and that was the United States.

Our government was eager to oblige. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz negotiated a 10-million- ton wheat deal with he communists. We even made it easy for Moscow to pay for the wheat, extending credit of $500 million for three years at low interest. Our government also allowed the Russians to buy the wheat the the current world price of $1.63 a bushel instead of the $2.00 or more per bushel U.S. price. Our government then paid U.S. grain exporters the difference, in what amounted to an outright taxpayer subsidy of the sale.

In return, the United States received exactly nothing. If the Administration was determined to go through with the sale and thereby shore up the Moscow regime, the least the negotiators could have done was obtained concessions from the communists in Vietnam or Eastern Europe. But there is no evidence that any such concessions were so much as mentioned.

The Kremlin has obtained itself a very good bargain. The enslaved people of Russia and our own citizens are paying for it. HLH

Smashing Pay Controls:
Labor Chiefs Plan
Unity After Election
For Strike- Filibuster
Assault on President's Powers

By Victor Riesel

WASHINGTON-- It did look, for the better part of the morning last Friday the 13th, the only one of its kind this year, that the day would be a lucky one for Richard Nixon's economic game plan. But some of the President's most intimate advisers, among whom he sat after walking into the Cabinet Room shortly after 10 a.m., had their fingers crossed.

From where they sat at the big table, the advisers saw the White House on a holocaustal collision course with a traditional enemy-- the militant United Auto Workers Union (UAW). The last time they collided (in 1970) the cost ran to billions of dollars and Mr. Nixon has charged the strike detailed the nation's prosperity.

It was peaceful inside the Cabinet Room last Friday as the President, for almost an hour, thanked the Pay Board, and its now- toughened chairman Judge Boldt, and Cost of Living Director Don Rumsfeld for keeping the nation's average pay hike to 5 per cent. And for zeroing in on the inflation target-- which meant lowering the annual cost- of- living rate to 3 per cent. And he was certain it would be down to 2 per cent by the year's end.

Those around him that morning got the feeling that nothing would be done about wage- price controls until "after the inauguration." And that the national 5.5 per cent permissible pay raise standard would be held right through Nov. 14, the first anniversary of Phase Two and the setting of that ceiling.

Then after inauguration-- no one in the White House doubts a sweeping victory-- the President will decide whether to ask for new Economic Stabilization Act powers, or for a six- month extension to cover the tough 1973 contract negotiations and to hold the fort for 1974-- the big major metals contract year.

The President, sitting across from Treasury Secretary George Shultz, the homefront Henry Kissinger, knew that the free world's prosperity could rest on such decisions.

But inauguration or no inauguration, the decisions may not be the President's to make.

American labor, this time hitting the theme of their favorite anthem, "solidarity," might not let him have such power. Especially if the labor-liberal- Democratic alliance controls the Congress again.

And they plan to prevent his winning a second set of controls even if they don't have the votes. Their senatorial allies can always filibuster a new economic stabilization bill to death -- or at least right through the bargaining in the electrical, rubber, trucking, meat packing and, finally, auto and farm implements industries. And these negotiations lead into 1974 -- with its steel confrontation.

Labor leaders now split between Dick Nixon and George McGovern, now growling at each other as sell-out artists, are agreed on what they call the need for the end of controls. Labor leader George Meany has been telling his people to fight for control of Congress so the Stabilization Act, from which the President draws his powers, can be wiped off the books.

And at the other end of the spitting spectrum, for example, the militant UAW veteran, secretary- treasurer Emil Mazey, second in command, told this correspondent the other day:

"We will consult with all of labor right after the election. And the President could wind up next May 1 without any controls, with no power to impose wage restrictions.

"We will hit hard. We will try to scuttle the Economic Stabilization Act or improve it as we see it. Or we could use new tactics to organize a filibuster. Then we could hold up legislation long after the act expires."

So, back to the Cabinet Room this past Friday the 13th. Secretary Shultz knows the labor movement. He is Mr. Nixon's ambassador to most of it. And he must have seen far beyond the horizon of those White House windows.

Out there that day and through the weekend, the Auto Workers were back to their traditional national militancy. They were on a hit- and- run strategy. This is the strategic strike tactic. Hit the one key plant from which flows the automative- machine parts, such as the GM stamping plant in Mansfield, Ohio.

Local 549, UAW, hit "Mansfield" that Friday the 13th. And Mazey and his colleagues in Detroit's Solidarity House know that a month- long Mansfield shutdown could choke the auto part pipeline and cripple GM production from Canada, through the U.S., into Mexico. And a few more such strategic strikes and the entire auto industry could grow paraplegic.

Why? Because GM is the world's biggest parts producer and sells to Ford, Chrysler, American Motors and the agricultural implement industry-- such as Deere and International Harvester.

Thus what happened that Friday, including other short strikes, was rehearsal for 1973's big negotiations for a new contract next September. Short strikes which would throw the entire vital industry's production schedule off-- in a fight for a big pay package.

And if there are no controls, or there is a filibuster, it will be showdown as usual.

So that may not have been a lucky Friday the 13th after all.

Bond-Dowd In Agreement At Independence Meeting

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Republican Christopher Bond and Democrat Edward L. Dowd found themselves in general agreement on more issues than they differed on in a joint appearance of the Missouri gubernatorial candidates here Wednesday night.

Both candidates spoke in favor of an open meetings law, collective bargaining for teachers, the merit system, welfare reforms and the equal rights amendment; both opposed legalized gambling or a state lottery and additional gun control measures.

Both also are outspoken advocates of a change in state government, but the agreement ends there.

Before an estimated 350 persons in the Truman High School auditorium, many of them young and seemingly equally divided in their support, Bond said, "Change is not enough if it is just a change in the faces within the party that has ruled the state for the past 28 years."

Dowd, speaking second after winning a preliminary coin toss, said "drastic changes" need to be made in Jefferson City. But he said experience is needed and that the next governor must be able to deal effectively with a state legislature controlled by the Democrats.

The appearance was sponsored by local units of the League of Women Voters and the American Association of University Women. Mrs. Helen C. Waters, state LWV president, served as a moderator.

Both candidates spoke for some 20 minutes, then fielded questions from the audience. Both Dowd and Bond were given an opportunity for two-minute answers to each question.

The nominees exchanged barbs on Bond's disputed residency and Dowd's alleged refusal to list all campaign contributions.

In the question and answer session, the candidates divided on the issue of a state no-fault auto insurance program. Bond said Missouri must adopt a "modified" no-fault plan. Dowd opposed such a program, saying state rssidents "don't realize what they will lose if they adopt no-fault insurance."

In his introductory remarks, Bond, the 33-year-old state auditor briefly outlined his proposals for a "circuit breaker" tax program for the elderly, better management of state revenue, a three-point drug abuse program of enforcement, education and rehabilitation and a plan to promote educational equality while preserving the autonomy of local schools.

In the field of crime and law enforcement, Bond called for regional correctional facilities, meaningful work-release programs and more funds for probation and parole activities.

Bond also noted he has proposed "sweeping reforms on how campaigns are financed," including elimination of the 90day cutoff period that provides for no report by the candidates of funds received 90 days prior to an election.

"These reforms and an open meeting law are the types of reform that may be made if we are to inspire confidence in state government," Bond said.

Then Dowd took the speaker's stand and recalled he had released major position papers on the changes needed in Missouri government when he first filed for governor two years ago.

"I see Mr. Bond has adopted practically all of them," Dowd added as his backers cheered.

Dowd, 54, made repeated references to his experience in law enforcement, the fact he has raised eight children in Missouri and that "I paid income tax to the state of Missouri every year."

Dowd said he refuses to endorse a sales tax on gasoline "or any other commodity" because the burden of the tax falls on those in the lower income bracket.

He called for the use of methadone for treatment of heroin addicts, although he noted the objection is that one is as addictive as the other.

Continue Search

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)— Feeling for some electronic pulse of life, an armada of planes prepared to resume the search today for a plane missing for three days with House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs and three other persons aboard.

Cool and clearing weather was expected to greet 35-40 aircraft crews, "if they can get off the ground due to the weather," an Air Force spokesman said.

He added that an electronic equipped search craft had flown the suspected flight path of the plane, "back and forth between Anchorage and Juneau" efforts to pick up possible distress signals.

Meanwhile, three Coast Guard cutters plied rough seas in the Gulf of Alaska during the night.

Bad weather continued to jumble the search schedule, but a Coast Guard spokesman in Juneau said it was "silly to give up hope when there are so many areas left uncovered."

Today's search was expected to center around two areas along the 560- mile route- the rugged Portage Pass area 50 miles southwest of Anchorage and coastline and mountain areas northwest of Juneau, about 500 miles to the Southeast.

GOP Sabotage Figure Is McGovern Volunteer

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Donald H. Segretti, named as a key figure in an alleged Republican spying and sabotage campaign against Democratic presidential candidates, is listed here as a volunteer for George McGovern.

Barbara Bennett, manager of the McGovern-Shriver campaign headquarters in this Los Angeles coastal suburb, showed newsmen Wednesday three index cards bearing Segretti's name but indicating he had never taken part in any McGovern-Shriver rallies, canvasses or other volunteer work.

No one at the Santa Monica office could recall seeing the man identifying himself as Segretti.

Miss Bennett said, however, that volunteers sometimes appeared at rallies and other events without signing themselves in and therefore she could not say categorically that Segretti actually never did any campaign work.

Segretti, 31, a registered Democrat and former Treasury Department attorney, has been unavailable for comment since Oct. 10, when he was first linked in news accounts to alleged operations by the GOP to disrupt Democratic campaign.

Efforts to reach him Wednesday night were unsuccessful.

Earlier Wednesday the New York Times joined the Washington Post and Time magazine in publishing stories linking White House aide Dwight Chapin to Segretti.

The Times said it had learned that at least 28 calls made from Segretti's home telephone and charged to his credit card were directed to the White House, Chapin's home, and to the home and office of E. Howard Hunt Jr., a former White House consultant indicted in the June 17 break-in at Democratic National headquarters.

Time magazine said this week that it was Chapin who hired Segretti as an undercover agent to "subvert and disrupt Democratic candidates' campaigns this election year" and that more than $35,000 was passed to him through Herbert Kalmbach, President Nixon's personal attorney.

Economy Slows But Makes Solid Gains On Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economy slowed down in the July-September quarter, but still scored solid gains while the rate of inflation edged up, the government said today.

The Commerce Department reported that the Gross National Product, market value of the nation's output of goods and services, advanced at a 5.9per cent annual rate during the third quarter compared with 9.4 per cent in the second. The rate of inflation moved up to 2.2 per cent compared with 1.8 per cent in the second quarter.

Although the growth rate was slower than in the previous quarter it was well within the over-all performance forecast by the Nixon administration.

The administration has predicted that the economy will grow at slightly more than 6 per cent for all of 1972 while the rate of inflation will be about 3.25per cent.

A Commerce Department analyst, Asst. Secretary Harold C. Passer, said the figures announced by his department made it virtually certain that 1972 "will be a banner year for the U.S. economy." He said they show the economy is continuing to expand rapidly and that inflation has been held in check.

Passer said prospects are excellent for the administration to reach its goal of a 3per cent inflation rate at the end of the year. According to the GNP figures, the rate of inflation increased by 3per cent in the first three quarters of the year.

The department said that GNP increased by $22.8billion in the third quarter to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.162trillion. In terms of current dollars, this was a growth of 8.3per cent.

But in subtracting the effects of inflation, the government figured it as a real gain in output of 5.9per cent.

In the previous quarter, the GNP increased by $30.3 billion. The administration said at the time that it would be difficult to sustain a growth rate of 9.4 per cent and as low a rate of inflation as 1.8per cent.

Drug Abuse Film To Be Shown Tonight

A film on drug abuse will be shown at Concordia Lutheran Church tonight at 8 p.m. in co-ordination with the Alcoholics Anonymous program.

The film, "On Your Doorstep", will present Art Linkletter talking with children and young people on the use of drugs.

The film was designed to be used in schools and churches and has been viewed by 250,000 school children and adults.

It is to help assist communities in their efforts in combating drug abuse or beginning one where none exists.

Art Linkletter, president of the National Co-ordinating Council on Drug Abuse Education, has said "We must get neighborhoods and communities to think and work together, drawing in as many diverse elements as possible. They must be moved by the urgency of the problem."

The film is being shown under the auspices of the Concordia Church. The showing is open to the public and no admission will be charged.

Tackle Life's Problems One Day At A Time

Dear Ann Landers: Sorry, I don't agree with your comments to the wife who informed her husband that she gets the most out of their lovemaking when she pretends he's someone else. You said everyone fantasizes to a certain degree and it's nothing to become unglued about--- it's the same as daydreaming at night.

If a wife has to think about Ryan O'Neal when she's with her husband the least she can do is keep her mouth shut. I would not be very flattered if I discovered that the reason my husband was having such a great time was because he was pretending I was somebody else. If he confessed such a thing to me I'd tell him that if I wasn't exciting enough he could go find someone who was.

We hear too much these days about weirdos, switch-hitters, wife- swapping, peep-shows, naked men in centerfolds, and kooky sex practices. What we need in this country is a champion for decency and morality. I had hoped it would be you, Ann Landers. Sorry you let me down.--- No Substitutes Needed

Dear No Sub: The human mind is such an intricate piece of machinery that no one can say exactly how it operates, particularly in the area of sexual responses. What turns a person on is a mysterious mix of everything he ever saw, read, heard and dreamed about, plus assorted bits and pieces, so private they are shared with no one. Not everyone can tolerate complete openness and frank talk. So, I agree with you, honey, some people SHOULD keep their mouths shut.

Dear Ann Landers: Three years ago I clipped my favorite column and carried it in my wallet until it is just bareley legible. You called it "How To Get Through the Day," and it helped me more than anything I have ever read in my life. Will you play it again, Sam?--- Linda

Dear Linda: With Pleasure.

Just for today I will live through the next 12 hours and not tackle my whole life problem at once.

Just for today I will improve my mind. I will learn something useful. I will read something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

Just for today I will be agreeable. I will look my best, speak in a well modulated voice, be courteous and considerate.

Just for today I will not find fault with friend, relative or colleague. I will not try to change or improve anyone but myself.

Just for today I will have a program. I might not follow it exactly, but I will have it. I will save myself from two enemies --- hurry and indecision.

Just for today I will exercise my character in three ways. I will do a good turn and keep it a secret.

If anyone finds out, it won't count.

Just for today I will do two things I don't want to do, just for exercise.

Just for today I will be unafraid. Especially will I be unafraid to enjoy what is beautiful and believe that as I give to the world, the world will give to me.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teen- Age Sex-- Ten Ways To Cool It." Send 50c in coin and a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope to this newspaper.

Laird Moves For Control Of Military

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird moved today to strengthen civilian control of the military and expand the inspector general system to prevent a recurrence of incidents such as the unauthorized bombing of North Vietnam.

Laird announced that he has ordered an inspector general system created in the military's unified commands which would report to the Secretary of Defense through the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Under this, each unified command would have an inspector general on the staff with responsibility to inspect the individual service commands in operational military matters, particularly as they involve command and control, Laird explained.

There are a number of unified commands around the world, including the Pacific command headquartered in Hawaii, which has over-all responsibility for military operations of all the services in the Indochina war.

The Defense secretary's announcement was in a five-page letter to Sen. John Stennis, DMiss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee, which this week asked Laird to advise what steps were being taken to avoid a repetition of the LaVelle affair.

Maj. Gen. John D. Lavelle was the commander of the 7th Air Force in Vietnam who ordered 28 unauthorized bombing strikes against the North from November 1971 through March of this year. He falsely reported these raids as "protective reaction" strikes.

SCIENCE IN YOUR LIFE

Our society is becoming more and more highly developed, but in many ways our lives are more affected by weather than were lives in earlier days. So says UMC atmospheric scientist James McQuigg.

McQuigg has developed computer models to show how weather affects the demand for electric power. As one example, the higher the temperature, the greater the consumption of electricity for air conditioning.

And McQuigg's models show that the demand is increasing at an increasing rate. By applying these calculations to his computer program, McQuigg has been able to forecast the electric power demand for 1980 and beyond.

Using the results of McQuigg's research, power suppliers will be able to anticipate our needs and provide us with the electricity which we find so essential to our present way of life.

Waste not, pollute not. So says Joe Edmondson of the UMC department of food science and nutrition. Responsible for new product development in the department, Dr. Edmondson has recently been considering fish processing.

When fillets of frozen fish are prepared and packaged for the market, many desirable small pieces of fish are left over. Until recently, these have been discarded through conventional disposal methods, eventually contributing to pollution.

Dr. Edmondson proposes using soy protein from Missouri - grown soybeans. He would mix it with the "scraps" of fish to make fish patties.

"Once assembled, the patties would look the same, be nutritionally about the same, have as good or better texture, and be just as tasty as the original product," he says. Processor costs would go down, raw material costs would go down, the amount of fish wastes going into pollution would go down or completely disappear, and there would be an attractive new food product on the market.

Four hundred twenty families in five Missouri counties are working on a research project with the UMC College of Agriculture. The project seeks ways to increase incomes for farmers with small acreages when limited capital is available.

Twelve local farmers have been hired as assistants in the project. Each one will work with 25 to 35 families. These assistants have been trained by Extension specialists.

Already the UMC researchers have made important discoveries. They have found that a few of the small farm operators are taking advantage of government assistance that is available to them. Farm planning, low interest or guaranteed loans, cost-sharing, and educational programs are being ignored. Some of the farmers had never taken a soil sample before this new project was started.

Says project leader Ed Wiggins, "It is hoped that the knowledge we gain in the five counties now being studied will help us to develop a state-wide program. While only a few of these small farm operators may ever achieve big scale, many of them will be able to increase their net income and improve the quality of family living."

British Pound Drops 1.5 Cents

LONDON (AP) — The British pound fell to its lowest level in 22 months today under a wave of selling orders from continental centers. In two hours of hectic trading it dropped 1.5 U.S. cents.

Dealers said the pound apparently came under attack as a result of Britain's persistent high rate of inflation and the threat of a national power strike.

The pound dropped to $2.394 shortly before noon, down from Wednesday's closing of $2.4082.

This was its lowest level since December 1970. Sterling had lost more than 15 cents since June 23, when the British government freed the pound to float at the mercy of market forces to halt a run on the pound.

The present run, sparked like that in June by the state of the economy, took sterling below its previous parity of $2.40 tor the first time since the December Smithsonian Agreement, when the dollar was devalued.

'Cat Dancing' Marked as Hit

HOLLYWOOD—(N E A)—Not since "True Grit" has a novel with a western setting inspired such enthusiasm among movie-makers. But now there is "The Man Who Loved Cat Dancing," and it has Big Movie Hit written all over it.

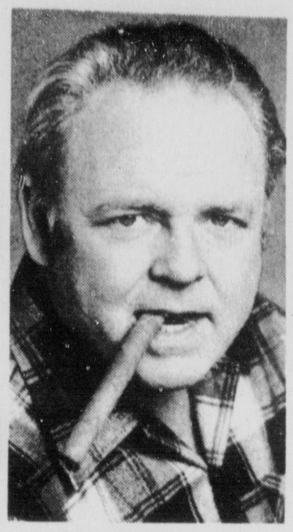
It has something "True Grit" didn't have — a love story to go with its action. That's like having James Bond meet the Planet of the Apes. It's sure-fire box-office.

The property has been bought by Martin Poll and Eleanor Ferry and they're trying to put together a cast. MGM will be the studio. Lots of rumors are flying around about the cast—you hear John Wayne mentioned (he's mentioned for everything, except maybe the sequel to "Mary Poppins") and Steve McQueen and Elliott Gould and Dustin Hoffman.

They should consult Marilyn Durham, the housewife from Evansville, Ind., who wrote the book. When she was working on it, she says, she kept a couple of people in mind for the key roles. She says she has a bad memory for faces so she had these people in her head so she'd never forget what her characters looked like.

For the girl, Julie Adams. For the girl's husband, Carroll O'Connor. And for the leading man, she stuck a poster of Lee Van Cleef up on her wall. In fact, it was a picture of Van Cleef looking mean and threatening, so she put it up on her refrigerator door and added the words, "Keep out." Mrs. Durham, you see, tends to put on weight. She says the poster didn't help her diet but it did help her book.

John Wayne



Carroll O'Connor

Rumors, rumors.

There ought to be a movie about Marilyn Durham, as well as a movie from her book. Her story is one of those Henrietta Alger affairs. You have every right not to believe it, it's so corny. But it's true unless everybody else has fallen for a hoax, too.

Marilyn Durham grew up in Evansville, went to school and college in Evansville, married in Evansville and still lives there. A bright girl, she always "wanted to do something," but never quite made it. She wanted to act, first, but that was "impossible." For awhile she wanted to paint but that wasn't quite it, either. And for a long time she wanted to write.

"As I inched up on 40," she says, "I felt depressed—I'd done nothing with my life. So I decided to write a novel."

For a year, she read novels and studied their formats. For a few more months she read books on how to write books. Then she had the old family typewriter cleaned, bought some paper and set up a card table in the bedroom.

Most first novels are autobiographical but not Mrs. Durham's. She says her own life was too dull for a book. She made up a story, set in the Old West, and began banging away at the typewriter. She didn't even tell her husband, Kilburn, "a bureaucrat with the Social Security Department." She didn't tell her two kids. She'd type after they'd gone to work and school, have things put away by the time they got home.

She did her research in the children's section of the Evansville Library. She didn't want to go deeper than that. At one point in the book, her heroine suffers a lot from a few days and nights in the wilds. She says that's from personal experience.

"Catherine's misery in the wilderness," she says, "is based entirely on my misery one weekend when I took a Girl Scout troop on an overnight encampment."

It took a long time to sell the book. It was rejected by a bunch of agents and publishers. But when it sold, it sold big, and she'll make a lot of money from book and movie.

The first fruits of her labors: She bought a new car for her husband and a used car for herself and she bought her daughter a horse. The cars were O.K., but the horse was a lemon—it had thrush, fungus and the back legs were pigeon-toed, but the girl likes it anyhow. Then her other daughter broke her collarbone "so I bought her a new collarbone." She bought them all new glasses and a new house.

She wrote a second novel, "Dutch Uncle," while waiting for "Cat Dancing" to sell. So she's in good shape. And she's enjoying success. Why not?

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Look for a Nixon Vietnam Surprise

WASHINGTON (NEA)

The odds are rising that somewhere in the Oct. 18-22 span President Nixon will spring a Vietnam war announcement which may dash altogether Sen. George McGovern's now faintly building hopes. High sources say the Nixon move will have a hard, convincing core to it, rather than a tone of vague promise.

If the plan comes off as presently projected, the President will not begin his heavy on-the-road campaigning until his announcement is made. On the assumption that it will be well received, the thinking is that Mr. Nixon's two weeks of political travel could take on the air of a triumphal tour.

This strategy would delay by one week the original schedule which called for the President to hit the trail steadily by Oct. 14-15. It does not preclude quick in-and-out trips like the Oct. 12 parade-and-rally venture to Atlanta to show the GOP flag in the Deep South.

Speaking of the President's evident intent to pull off a good one in the closing weeks, a friend says:

"The President has been waiting for this moment for a long time. He's been done to death with Democrats' late-hour coups (like Lyndon Johnson's Oct. 31 bombing halt in 1968). You can just bet he's not going to let this opportunity slip away."

Mr. Nixon, always conscious of political timing and getting frequent advice on the subject, seems to think very late-hour moves like LBJ's are unwise, that there's more benefit from earlier steps which have a chance to sink in with voters and may enhance a candidate's final crowds.

The planned Nixon coup does not reflect fear in the White House and other GOP circles that McGovern is seriously closing the wide gap most public and private polls show still exists between the two presidential nominees. The President has something else in mind. Says a knowledgement Republican analyst:

"He wants to see some records tumble. He'd like to silence all that talk that he can't be a big winner."

Matching or beating Johnson's 61 per cent in 1964 and Franklin D. Roosevelt's 60.8 per cent in 1936 may be too high a goal, despite today's one-sided polls putting Nixon in that range.

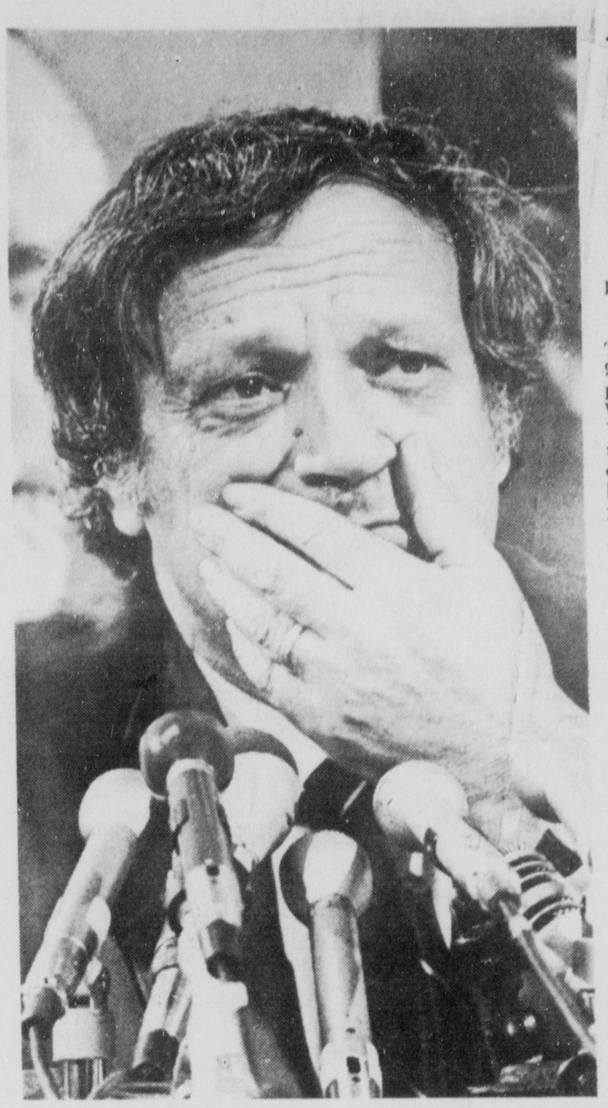
What would be deeply satisfying to the President would be to surpass the landslide margins run up in 1952 and 1956 by national hero Dwight D. Eisenhower on the Republican ticket. Ike's well-remembered best showing, in 1956, gave him 57 per cent of the vote and a winning margin of 9.5 million votes.

The Democrats' early season jibes at Nixon as a man who fades under campaign pressures and nearly blows it probably were a strategic mistake. They have only heightened his determination to apply a crusher to McGovern in what will, of course, be the President's last election campaign of his lifetime.

Nixon clearly relishes his unique chance to command events in a political situation. Only a president, obviously, has so sure an opportunity.

McGovern, of course, is the one who really needs the big coup. My newest nationwide telephone survey of the states produces ample testimony that he is a little better off generally than a month ago, but that few think he can make it a close race unless he "gets a big break" or "catches fire." So far, nothing like this has happened.

Meantime, Mr. Nixon doesn't mind too much McGovern's charges that he is "in hiding." Yes, the President likes the open fight. But it's also nice to sit there, waiting, with one hand on a nice fat surprise package.



THAT'S A GOOD QUESTION, would appear to be the reaction of Frank Mankiewicz, a director of Sen. George McGovern's troubled campaign, during a Washington press conference.

Washington Report by Senator Symington

SENATE ACTS ON YOUTH LEGISLATION, CLEARS FOR WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Towards the conclusion of the 92nd Congress, the Senate passed and cleared for the White House an amended Youth Conservation Corps Act to expand the summer youth employment program that has been in operation the past two yerars.

The three year program had been funded at an authorization level of $3.5 million through 1973.

The new bill extends the program another year with a $30 million authorization in fiscal year 1973 and $60 million in fiscal 1974.

The youth program, since enactment in 1970, has provided employment opportunities to young men and women from various backgrounds during summer months to develop, protect, and maintain Federal recreation areas and public lands.

Jobs include campground and trail construction and maintenance, soil erosion control, range management, timber stand improvement, shoreline stabilization and historical research.

Expansion of the program also includes provision in the bill for Federal support to States to establish youth conservation programs on State lands, with a maximum 80 percent share of the cost for any program. Thus far the program has been limited to Federal recreation areas and public lands.

The new bill also would provide that the Secretaries of Agriculture and Interior determine with other Federal agencies additional appropriate programs under their respective jurisdictions that could use youth corps services.

Other new provisions include authorization of off-season use of permanent Corps facilities by local educational institutions for environmental studies, and to provide that surplus or unused Federal equipment be made available for Corps use.

This program of providing additional employment opportunities to youth, at the same time maintaining our natural resources, has been determined as most worthwhile. In the first year of operation in 1971, over 124,000 young people applied for the 2600 positions then available.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Do Fruits Contain Cholesterol?

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—My husband was told by his doctor to go on a low cholesterol diet for four months and then he would check him again. I know the foods to avoid like ice cream, gravy, chocolate, fried foods, etc., but I'm wondering about fruits when he is hungry (apples, oranges, and bananas, etc.). What about canned vegetables as long as they are packed in water. Can he drink beer?

Dear Reader—As far as cholesterol content is concerned, none of the vegetables or fruits or plants contain cholesterol. It's only animal products such as meats, dairy products, and eggs, that contain cholesterol. There is no reason why your husband couldn't eat fruits and vegetables and no reason from the cholesterol or fat point of view why he couldn't drink beer.

Your doctor may have wanted your husband to go on a low fat, low cholesterol diet since just limiting the cholesterol alone in the diet often won't accomplish so much. Such a diet would have to consist of fruits, vegetables, lean meats (like round steak with all the excess fat removed), fish, chicken and low fat or fortified skim milk, and if your husband needs to lose weight, he should avoid all high calorie foods, including concentrated sweets, and fat of any kind whether it is vegetable or animal.

Without controlling obesity most diet programs are doomed to failure in preventing fatty deposits in the arteries (atherosclerosis). A gradual fat reduction with continued prevention of obesity combined with a low fat, low cholesterol diet seems to work best.

The most commonly eaten food high in cholesterol is the egg yolk. One yolk contains about 250 milligrams. A three and one half ounce (raw) serving of lean beef contains only 70 milligrams.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am quite concerned with a skin condition I contracted after taking birth control pills for two years. My face became quite blotched and although I have been off the pill now for two years, the pregnancy mask which the doctor said would lighten up and disappear has failed to do so and my face is still vividly marked. What can I do or take to correct this disfiguring condition?

Dear Reader—I am afraid that there isn't anything you can take. This complexion problem is the same that affects some women during pregnancy and is exactly the same as the pregnancy mask that you referred to. It is an increase in the normal pigmentation produced by the skin. In a sense the spots are giant freckles. What you're up against then is the same question as how to remove freckles. Staying out of the sun will probably help. If you're exposed to the sun, and depending on the distribution of the spots, you may be able to cover the individual spots with any form of sun screen while not covering the rest of the skin. This will help to even the tanning of the skin and may be of some benefit. I wish I could be more encouraging, but unfortunately, that's nature. They do tend to diminish or go away in the course of time in most women who have this problem after they quit taking the birth control pill or after pregnancy.

in the Commercial Appeal

WASHINGTON — The retail value of the commercial exploitation of the Appolio program has now passed one million dollars. That is to say, people have made more than a million dollars cashing in on the astronauts' trips to the moon. Unfortunately the astronauts have shared in this questionable rip-off of the space program. Every day reveals some new commercial aspect of the Apollo trips that was not known to the American public.

There is a fear among some that the million dollars is just the tip of the iceberg, and the really big deals that the astronauts made with promoters have not come out yet.

The biggest nightmare of all for the space agency is that astronauts may have SOLD the moon to an unscrupulous real estate developer. One day in the not too distant future someone like E. Pluribus Yunum may walk into NASA headquarters and say, "I understand you're building a space shuttle to land on my moon."

"Your moon?" a NASA official asks.

"Yes, I bought the moon from the astronauts 16 months ago. There's the deed, registered in Houston, Texas."

"But they had no right to sell the moon to anyone!"

"Who says so? I gave them each $2,500, and they sold the place to me, air rights and all. Now don't get me wrong. I'm not against the space shuttle, because we will need transportation when we develop 'Moonlight Acres.' But we just want to make sure the landing field for the shuttle won't interfere with our master plan."

"Just a minute," the NASA man says. He pushes the button on his intercom. "Send in any Apollo astronauts you can find in the building."

A few minutes later three astronauts come into the office.

"Did you sell this guy the moon?" the NASA man asks.

"He took an option on it," one of the astronauts replies sheepishly.

"And I picked up the option," Yunum says. "Don't you remember I gave you each a check and the right to build a house apiece on the Sea of Tranquility?"

"I knew we signed some papers," another astronaut admits, "but I didn't know the sale was final."

"It's final, all right," Yunum says. "We're taking ads in next Sunday's newspapers announcing the sale of lots.

"We're also selling acreage, $10 down and $10 a month, along the Sea of Serenity. We'll provide a golf course, tennis courts, schools, roads and fishing and boating facilities to the lucky owners. And each site will have an unobstructed view of Earth."

The NASA man says, "I don't know what it is, but there has to be something illegal about this sale."

Yunum says, "I checked it out with my lawyers. There is no question about it; I own the moon and I'm going to develop it. Now if you people still want to land on it, it's all right with me. But I don't want a lot of spaceships landing late at night. It could discourage real estate sales."

The NASA executive looks at the astronauts. "How could you do it? How could you cheapen the whole space program by selling the moon?"

"If we hadn't," an astronaut says defensively, "one of the other guys would have done it. Besides, he told us he wanted to make a notional park out of it."

"If you want," another astronaut says, "we'll give the $2,500 back."

EAGLETON AMENDMENTS FOR AGRICULTURE IN NEW POLLUTION CONTROL BILL

On October 4 Congress finished work on a new water pollution control law and sent it to the President the next day for his signature.

If the President signs it, this law will authorize $24 billion in federal assistance to states and communities to help them clean up the nation's waters and will establish a two- phase cleanup program for industry with increasingly strict restrictions on industrial pollution.

I am pleased to report that the bill which the Congress sent to the President includes all of my proposals for helping farmers in their efforts to control agricultural pollution.

Research Program

One of my proposals establishes for the first time a comprehensive research program on improved methods of preventing agricultural water pollution.

Another proposal I offered establishes a program under which farmers and ranchers can receive federal financial and technical assistance for demonstrating new and improved methods for controlling agricultural pollution.

These and related proposals which I introduced require close cooperation between water pollution control officials and representatives of the Department of Agriculture. Without such cooperation, farmers, ranchers, and others engaged in agriculture would have no assurance that pollution control programs would take into account the special problems of agriculture.

REAP

I am also pleased to report that the President has approved Congress' appropriation of $225.5 million for the 1973 Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP).

The REAP program makes it possible for hundreds of thousands of American farmers to protect valuable farmland and our streams and waterways from the damaging effects of soil erosion. Under that program, farmers put up at least 50% of the soil conservation efforts and provide the labor, time, and machinery.

The money appropriated by Congress for REAP will produce a total investment of nearly $500 million of public and private money in the vital effort to conserve farmland and restore our rivers and streams.

Over two and one- half months have elapsed since the President signed the REAP appropriations, but no money has been released for the program as yet. On October 11, 1972, I wrote the President urging him to announce the release of next year's REAP funds without delay. I hope the President's announcement of the release of REAP funds for 1973 will come soon.

Mail Box

I would like to state some political facts that some voters may be too young to know and some older voters may have forgotten.

The North could not compete with the slave labor of the South, so the Republican Party under the leadership of Abraham Lincoln started the Civil War. They crushed the South and freed the slaves. Then they made capitalistic slaves of both Black and White when the laborers gained unions. When the union went out on strike the army was called in to crush the strikers.

As late as 1922 the labor of the Frisco Railway Shops at Chaffee went out on strike. Two companies of National Guard were called in to crush this.

Herbert Hoover made a speech in Detroit in which he proclaimed that a dollar a day was enough for a working man.

In 1929 World War I veterans marched on Washington, trying to get a veterans bonus. They were fired on and their tents were burned.

This is the principal of the Republican Party.

People working for a living, carrying a union card, receiving social security, who votes a Republican ticket needs to hang their head in shame.

United we stand
Divided we fall

POLLY'S POINTERS

Remove Pen Marks With These Tips

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I am answering the reader whose two-year-old had marked on her stereo with a felt tipped pen. My little boy marked up my dresser, a door and the dryer with a black, a blue and a green one. While putting on some cologne I dabbed some of the marks to see what would happen. They were removed completely and with no damage to the finish on any of the things. I thought it was the alcohol in the cologne that worked the trick.—MRS. T. C. G.

DEAR GIRLS—Always test an inconspicuous spot first as finishes vary. Denatured alcohol is a remedy often suggested for the removal of ballpoint ink from fabrics.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—My little boy marked all over the deep freeze, aluminum screen door and a hardwood door with a black felt tipped pen. It cleaned off very easily with a well-known spot remover cleaning fluid. It even faded marks that had been on my husband's tool box for over a year.—JOYCE

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—My lovely crystal bud vase has a rust stain in the bottom made by the stem of an artificial flower. I do hope some reader can tell me how to remove this rust. Soap and water do not faze it. Thank you so much.—ANN

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with companies who make glasses with gold decorations that wash off.—MRS. R. T.

DEAR POLLY—I am a college art student and so many people in art classes have duplicate equipment. I use adhesive-backed plastic-coated paper to identify my tools. A small patch or strip of a distinctive design is on everything I carry with me. This takes a bit of time but certainly beats trying to scratch my initials on everything. This also would be useful for all school children no matter what age. In our dorm we are not allowed to put anything on the walls that would make a hole or scratch. Consequently there are a lot of barefaced walls. I put inexpensive adhesive backed cork tiles on a wall so they cover an area 4x6 feet and on them I hang my drawings, posters, pictures or just about anything and have no worries about the plaster. The cork panel makes a dramatic focal point for the entire room.—DEBORAH

$8,113.13. Common Cause said the figures were $18,473.24 and $7,756.44.

A pre-primary election report and the latest report, filed on Sept. 10, "began with cash on hand totals that were not consistent with the cash on hand figures at the close of the periods covered by previous reports," Common Cause said.

"In other instances, refunds totaling $1,033 appeared to be counted three times, once on the pre-primary report, and twice on the Sept. 10 report as both a refund and an individual contribution," the report added.

"These discrepancies, plus an apparent typographical error and several omissions on the total receipt column, made it difficult for Common Cause to determine an accurate financial picture" for Burlison, the report said.

Common Cause said Svendrowski listed $1,588.40 in expenditures and no contributors. Common Cause indicated that he may have paid for his campaign out of his own pocket.

The report said "there is nothing in the candidate's reports explaining this apparent discrepancy and nothing indicating the source of the funds used to cover the expenditures listed."

SHS Homecoming Friday

Coach Pete Cirrintano's Sikeston High School football team has the unenviable task of hosting the state's top rated Cape Girardeau Central Tigers in homecoming activity at Public School Stadium Friday night.

But a few of the circumstances surrounding this battle seem to add some enthusiasm for the Bulldogs.

Friday night's battle has been a long-awaited assignment for the young Bulldogs, who have pointed toward the Bengal clash all season.

Cape is riding high on a 13-game winning streak, dating back to a 17-0 thrashing at the hands of Parkway West last year. The last time Cape lost in conference action was four years and 22 games ago to the Sikeston Bulldogs on a homecoming date for the Dogs, 14-6 in 1968.

Since that year, Cape has won four conference crowns in a row and is bidding strongly for the fifth this year. A win against Sikeston would be a big step for coach Gary Lynch's crew.

Cape is also attempting to qualify for the state playoffs. The complicated rating system has hurt Central. Currently, despite a perfect 6-0 record, the Tigers are third in their district and have to be considered an outside shot for the playoff berth.

Cape is the only 4-A school from Southeast Missouri ever to qualify for a berth, losing in 1969 to McCluer High School of St. Louis, 27-0. The Tiger's cannot afford loss, if they wish to keep their dim hopes alive.

Sikeston is coming off a big win against Dexter last week, 50-26. The Dexter team, riding a four-game winning streak, was unable to cope with the superior Sikeston speed and the outstanding passing of Bill Colwick, as the Bearcats fell before the huge point barrage of the Bulldogs. "They put it all together against Dexter," Coach Lynch commented. "They are a team of potential."

Sikeston drew some heat for running up the score against Dexter, but the Bulldogs were forced to despite the high score Sikeston never led by more than 24 points, and that was late in the game. Although the Dexter defense was unable to stop the Sikeston passing and running games, the Bearcat offense seemed to move well through the air. The 26 points scored by the Bearcats would have been enough to win on most occasions.

Cape Central stresses team work. "Teams win games," Lynch said. "Individual stars are okay, but team work gets results."

Lynch has a few individual stars on his team this year, however. Tailback Paul Schermann is acclaimed to be the best back in this corner of the state and is a real candidate for all-state honors. The senior, one of three returning starters on the offensive team, has run for more than 950 yards in six games, averaging more than 12 yards per carry and scoring 110 points, a scoring pace that is record-setting in the district.

Schermann has a fine offensive line to follow and his greatest talent is following blocks, since the 190-pounder lacks outstanding speed.

Quarterback Bill Seabaugh, despite being in his first year of varsity competition, has a passing percentage above 50 per cent, for nearly 20 yards per completion, and is leading Southeast Missouri in touchdown passes. More important, he is a deceptive quarterback, leading the offense to an average of 39.8 points per game after six contests.

Tim Vickery is another returning starter in the backfield. Vickery has run for more than 500 yards and is a solid back in his own right.

Central returns six starters on defense, but the crew takes on a veteran look once they take the field. They have allowed just 29 points in six games so far, just three more than Sikeston allowed against Dexter last week.

Among Central opponents have been St. Louis number two team (at the time they played Hazelwood), one of southern Illinois' top teams in Carbondale and their prime challengers in the Norther Division, the Jackson Indians. Jackson, given the best shot at stopping Central, bowed 49-6.

Central's plus marks are overwhelming, but they will be facing a Sikeston team that seems to have blossomed overnight. Earlier in the season, opponents weren't stopping Sikeston, the Bulldogs were stopping themselves.

The line suddenly seemed to jell agains the Bearcats, as Sikeston ran up its highest score sinc 1964. The running, overshadowed by the fantastic passing game, accounted for 201 yards and four scores, after producing just one touchodwn in the first five games.

The defense was not real tough against Dexter, but it will have to be against Cape. However, the team had prepared for the wishbone attack and Dexter came out passing. It took the Dogs a long time to adjust and, even so, they were never real effective against Backfish, the Bearcat passer.

If Cape has some bonafide talent, so do the Bulldogs. Split end Glenn Guttenfelder has caught 30 passes for 670 yards after six games. Both are record paces. Quarterback Bill Colwick has established himself as the top passing quarterback to ever play for Sikeston.

Despite the absence of a solid running game during most of his two years at Sikeston, Colwock has completed over half his passes for a record average of 140 yards per game.

With the newly rejuvenated running attack backing him, he and his receiving buddies, Guttenfelder, Eisenbach and Farris, could give the Cape Central Tigers quite a surprise.

If the Dogs are not able to move the ball and, in turn, put a lot of pressure on the defense, it may be a sad homecoming for Bulldog fans.

Twilight Helps

OAKLAND (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds and Oakland A's entered the "Twilight zone" again tonight for the fourth game of the 1972 World Series.

And because of it, both teams looked forward to another low- scoring game following Cincinnati's 1-0 triumph Wednesday night that cut Oakland's series lead to 2-1.

"The twilight made the difference for me," said winning pitcher Jack Billingham after gaining the victory with ninth- inning help from Clay Carroll.

"You'll see another good one tonight with Don Gullett pitching," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson.

"Maybe the rest will be one- run games too," said Oakland Manager Dick Williams.

The first two games of the best- of- 7 series were played in Cincinnati last weekend, but the 3-2 and 2-1 Oakland successes were fashioned without any assistance from nature.

When the Series switched to the Oakland Coliseum this week, the starting time for the contest in California was 5:30 p.m. That's the worst time for a hitter because of the fast- fading light.

Cincinnati slugger Johnny Bench, who went 0- for- 4 Wednesday night and struck out three times, had been apprehensive about the conditions.

"I hate to hit in the twilight in Oakland," he had said.

But while it hurt the major leagues' top home run hitter, it also didn't do too much for the Oakland team.

"I don't usually strike out that many batters," said Billingham, who fanned seven Athletics. "The twilight no doubt helped me."

There was no twilight, however, when Billingham tired in the ninth. The journeyman right- hander, who gave up three hits through eight innings, started the ninth by throwing three straight balls to Mike Epstein while the crowd of 49,401 at the Coliseum sheered.

Anderson then decided that Billingham had gone far enough.

Carroll then came in to preserve that shaky lead by getting Epstein on a bouncer, Sal Bando on a soft line drive and George Hendrick on an easy hit to the mound.

While he was in, Billingham, a right- hander with an unspectacular .500 lifetime record, was a superman as far as Oakland was concerned. He fed the A's a steady diet of sinker balls and allowed only three flies during his tenure.

The only hits that he gave up were a bunt single by Joe Rudi in the fourth and infield hits by Dick Green in the fifth and pinch-hitter Gonzalo Marquez in the seventh.

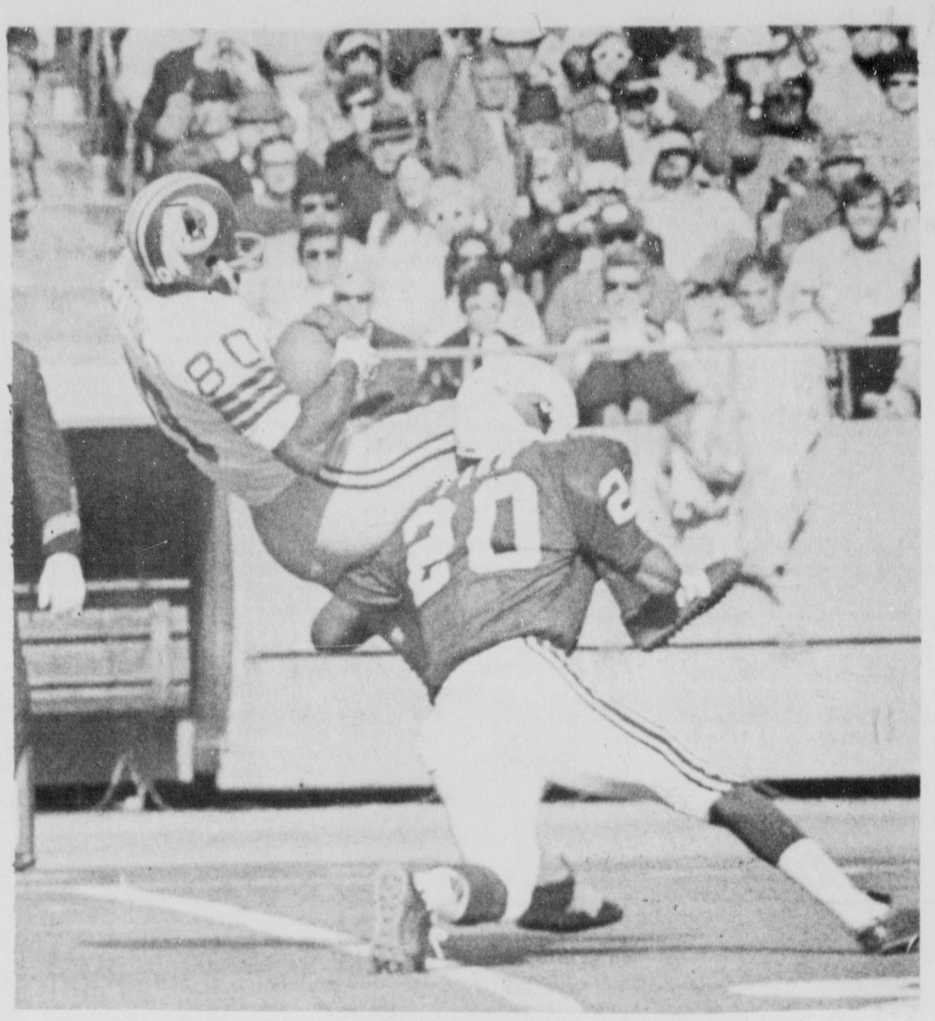
His only jam came in the sixth inning, when the A's had men on first and third with none out and the bases loaded with one man gone. But Billingham finished off the A's by getting Bando on a rally-killing double play.

John "Blue Moon" Odom was equally good for Oakland, striking out 11 before running into trouble in the seventh inning, when the Reds scored the game's only run.

Tony Perez signled and was sacrificed to second base by Denis Menke. Cesar Geronimo, hitless in his first nine World Series appearances, then laced a single to center field.

Perez barreled around third, slipped and fell on a field made soggy by 10 straight days of rain. But he picked himself up and scored the winning run when Oakland shortstop Bert Campaneris made no relay throw.

Williams has tapped Ken Holtzman to face Gullett in a matchup of hard-throwing southpaws tonight. The fifth game will also be played here Friday afternoon and the sixth and seventh, if necessary, in Cincinnati Saturday and Sunday.



BIG RED defensive back Miller Farr (20) brings down the Washington Redskins' Roy Jefferson (80) after the wide receiver caught an eight-yard pass in the Skins' 33-3 drubbing of the St. Louis Cardinals Sunday at Busch Memorial Stadium. The Cardinals travel to New York Sunday for battle with the Giants.

Reds 'Riled Up'

OAKLAND (AP) — Cincinnati slugger Johnny Bench says the World Series umpires have done the Reds a favor.

"We got a few calls that upset us tonight," Bench said after Cincinnati's tense 1-0 victory over Oakland Wednesday night.

"Our ball club is riled up," he said. "Now maybe we've worked out our frustrations."

Bench was anything but a key factor in the Cincinnati triumph, being called out on strikes three times, once with teammates on second and third base.

He was particularly upset about a call at first base in the Oakland sixth, when umpire Frank Umont said Bench's throw had drawn Joe Morgan off the bag.

That play put Oakland runners at first and second, but the Reds worked out of a basesloaded jam moments later with a double play.

Bench said his inability to hit didn't stem from the pressures of low-scoring games in which the Reds look to him for home run power.

"Naturally you want to drive in men," he said. "And tonight was the first time (in the Series) when I've come up with men on base.

"Everybody's had the problem of not driving in runs," he said. "We hadn't had batting practice in three days (because of rainy weather). But I still felt the big hits would come."

Most of the Reds, and Manager Sparky Anderson, saw the victory as a turning point.

Anderson said it led him to stick by his earlier prediction that "we'll win it in seven (games).

"We've got a pretty good team and we're in a pretty good league," he said, "and I still think we'll win it."

Bench said the victory is "a big boost for us. If we're (down) 3-0, it's tough, really tough. Now we're coming back."

"Our momentum is up now," said relief pitcher Clay Carroll, who came on in the ninth with a 3-0 count on slugger Mike Epstein and promptly retired three straight men.

Just Poor Acoustics

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Athletics blamed nobody, just poor acoustics, for the run that gave the third game of the World Series to the Cincinnati Reds.

"The runner's supposed to score on that play," center fielder George Hendrick said Wednesday night, patiently going over his part of the ball handling on Cesar Geronomo's game-winning hit in the seventh inning.

The Reds' Tony Perez was on second base and started running when Geronomo singled up the middle. Hendrick, going by the book, threw toward second base—just before Perez fell flat on his face rounding third base.

Shortsop Bert Campaneris took the throw near second and checked to see if Geronimo was trying to stretch the hit into a double.

"I saw Perez fall down and I yelled for Campy to go home with the throw, but the crowd was yelling and he couldn't hear anything," third baseman Sal Bando said. "If the throw had gone home right away, we would have had him."

Catcher Gene Tenace said, "I was yelling 'home' too, but I knew Campy couldn't hear us."

The shortstop said, "When I see the guy, he's sliding into home."

After the 1-0 loss, A's Manager Dick Williams said, "We're still ahead, two games to one, and I still think we're going to win the World Series. I won't predict how many games it will go.

"It won't be a sweep. I can tell you that."

Williams was hoping his team would be able to take batting practice—something it hasn't had since Sunday—before tonight's fourth Series game.

"But I've always said good pitching will beat good hitting, and the pitching in this game was excellent," he added.

Reds' starter Jack Billingham, who was relieved by Clay Carroll in the ninth, gave up only a bunt single and two infield singles.

A's starter John "Blue Moon" Odom went seven innings, giving up three hits and striking out 11, three more than he fanned in any regular season game.

Missouri Sportsmen Time

JEFFERSON CITY— When the air gets nippy and full of footballs, the time is ripe for Missouri sportsmen.

The big crowds have left the lakes, water skiers and boaters are at a minimum while good lunker fishing is at a maximum and good hunting is close at hand.

Not too many years ago, the fisherman packed up and left the lakes just about the time lunkers were ready to hit. Not so today. Fall and winter fishing is gaining in popularity as more and more lunkers are caught.

Last year for example, one of my best days of the year on the Lake of the Ozarks was in November. It was just before quail and deer season opened. The white bass were running so Jim Peck and I loaded up with 1/8 ounce white jigs and silver spoons and headed out.

The first cast, after stopping at a rocky point, produced a 3/4 pound white crappie. We dropped anchor and went on to take 17 more nice crappie, 11 white bass and a three pound walleye in about two hours fishing.

After moving on to a small cove, we tried silver spoons and found the largemouths ready. In about two more hours, we had taken five fish over four pounds including one six pounder. All of those fish hit harder than any I took all summer-- another reason for fall fishing in the "Show Me State."

All Missouri major lakes provide excellent fall and winter angling. Table Rock has led the list in winter fishing with strings of big bass caught through December. We know one angler who spends Christmas holidays fishing for big bass and several times his Christmas present has been landing a lunder weighing over seven pounds.

Other Missouri lakes for some good cold weather fishing are: Taneycomo for trout, walleye and bass; Pomme de Terre for crappie, bass and muskie; Stockton for northern pike and bass; Bull Shoals for bass; Clearwater and Wappapello for crappie and bass.

Fall and winter angling has a lot of advantages including the lack of competition with boaters, no bugs, bigger fish, many docks are open all year and something that appeals to a lot of anglers-- the fishing is as good if not better at 10 a.m. so you don't have to get up before sunrise.

While fall is fine for the fishermen, it's also great for the hunter. There's quite a variety of game in Missouri including some of the best waterfowl shooting found anywhere.

Summer, Missouri is known as the "Wild Goose Capital of the World" because of the heavy concentration of Canada geese in and around the Swan Lake National Wildlife Refuge.

Each fall tens of thousands of these majestic birds stop at the Swan Lake and the state's Fountain Grove area. Hunting is permitted within the refuges by hunters who draw for blinds at area headquarters.

Just as Swan Lake hosts thousands of Canadas, Squaw Creek Federal Refuge near Mound City is a heaven for as many snow and blue geese. Squaw Creek is located in the northwest part of the state and is also a hot spot for mallards.

Waterfowl hunting ranges from Squaw Creek in the north to Duck Creek in the south with the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers and a host of good pot holes and lakes in between.

If you're after bigger game, Missouri has that, too. The fall forecast is encouraging for the whitetail deer hunter. The bow hunter season started Oct. 1 and continues through Dec. 31. Last season, archers took 780 deer in Missouri. For the gunner, the season opens Nov. 18 and closes November 26.

With the exception of the Bootheel area, deer hunters will have what amounts to two opening days. During the first part of the season, bucks only can be shot but for the last weekend, any deer will be legal.

Missouri had a record kill last season when some 170,000 hunters took over 30,000 deer. Texas county led the state in total kills last year with Benton and Howell close behind. Each had well over 1,000 deer shot.

Missouri has record whitetails. One of the big bucks taken in north Missouri in 1969, scored 199 4/8 in the Boone and Crockett Big Game Club. It was the fourth largest typical whitetail rack in American big game hunting history.

Usually the largest deer come from north Missouri while the heavy kill areas are in the southern part of the state.

Small game hunting is rated good statewide with the squirrel and rabbit population up and another good quail hunt predicted.

Everyone wants the edge and for the sportsman in Missouri, fall provides it. At a time when Mother Nature is putting on a colorful show in the Missouri hills, the lunkers are waiting for the angler and the game is in the fields. What more could you ask?

LARRY GIBSON, Moberly deer hunter, poses with the rack which set a new Missouri typical white-tailed deer record when it scored 201 5/8 Boone and Crockett points. The rack may be a national leader when official scoring is released.

Trophy Hunters Gather

COLUMBIA — Missouri's upcoming gun deer season (Nov. 18-26 should have this minor but interesting statistic -- of each 10,000 hunters in the woods, one will take a trophy buck large enough to qualify him for membership in the Show Me Big Bucks Club.

The club held its fifth annual banquet Oct. 7 here with about 170 present. There now are 178 members in the club, founded in 1968 to honor those who claim animals with racks large enough to exceed rigorous minimum standards.

South of the Missouri river, it takes a buck with a rack measuring 140 Boone and Crockett points, while it takes one with 150 points north of the River.

Each year, the club honors the hunters who took the largest typical and non-typical racks in the state the preceding season.

This year's banquet had a unique distinction in that both racks also were new state records. Larry Gibson, Moberly, downed a white-tailed buck in Randolph County last season that scored 201 5/8 points -- a new typical whitetailed record.

The score beat the old mark of 199 4/8, set in 1969 by Jeff Brunk of Kirksville -- and Brunk's deer led the nation, so Gibson's deer probably will do the same when Boone and Crockett announces its official measurements for 1971.

Kenneth Lee, Rock Port, downed a buck in 1964 that wasn't measured until last year when it scored 208 7/8 non-typical points for a new state record. Young Lee now is in the Army in Germany, but his father, Charles, was at the banquet to accept the award.

Second place typical rack was taken by 14-year-old Robin Berhorst of Memphis. It scored 187 2/8. Vernon Sowers, Brunswick, was second in the non-typical division with a 203 5/8 point rack he took in 1953 which wasn't measured until last year.

Series Bets

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)— Gov. Ronald Reagan is betting two bottles of California wine against a bushel of sweet corn that the Oakland A's will take the World Series from the Cincinnati Reds.

The governor made the bet Friday, responding to a telegraphed challenge from Ohio Gov. John J. Gilligan.

Reagan described his wager as "two bottles of California's finest wines, a delightful Chablis and a Burgundy that is second to none."

Gilligan is taking "a bushel of sweet corn, the nation's best."

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— The mayors of Cincinnati and Oakland have put up some unusual stakes in a bet on the World Series.

Cincinnati Mayor Thomas Luken wagered a case of Cincinnati- produced Ivory soap against Oakland Mayor John Reading's offer of a year's rides on the Bay Area Rapid Transit System.

The two bet on the respective teams in heir cities during a telephone conversation Friday.

---

Roberto Clemente of the Pittsburgh Pirates won his first National League batting title in 1961, hitting .351. He won three more after that. He was the World Series star last year.

Willie Mays won one National League batting title. In 1954 he led the league with .345.

---

Two Young Men On the Way Back

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) The two young men had been on heroin and now were in a therapeutic house in the Washington area learning to break the habit.

They were quite impressive, both of them. They seemed to be on the way. Talking with them was the sort of experience that gave you hope.

The secret of their progress seemed to lie in a few simple things. They lived under stringent, rigid rules which they knew they could not break. They knew the penalties for violations, and they knew these penalties would be enforced. They had definite responsibilities and there was no shying away from those responsibilities.

When it was necessary, they were dressed down like they had never been dressed down in their lives. They could leave if they couldn't take it. They lived in absolute honesty.

No one in the house they stay in minced any words about what they thought about what anyone else in the house was doing, or how he did it. In return, the two young men did not shy away from absolute frankness in saying what they thought about the other young men and women in the house — to their faces.

But there were rules as to when that could be done too. They had been, they said, young men who insisted on doing what they wanted to do when they wanted to do it. They hadn't at home, at school or at work, wanted to be told to do anything — and certainly not by a time schedule. They hadn't had responsibility.

Now they were living with all these things. And liking it.

But they were having trouble with the outside world. Outside people they had contact with (their parents) found it difficult to deal with their frankness.

They weren't certain why they'd gone on dope. Neither one blamed his parents. Neither knew what his parents could have done. One thought perhaps his mother had been too easy on him, hadn't given him enough responsibility. Maybe, he said, she had given him too much money to spend and not asked enough of him. His stepfather had tried to interest him in his business, but he didn't respond.

Now, when he's cured, he wants to go into his stepfather's business, learn the trade. He thinks he was a child. He is certain he's slowly growing up now and can take it.

The other young man, a black, said he had been very close to his parents. They went everyplace together, not because he was forced to, but because he liked being with them.

But he was bored with school, began hanging around with other young dropout types, drifted into dope when the others invited him.

What would have kept him in school? He doesn't know, but did mention he'd wanted to write poetry but was afraid to mention it to his teachers because it might make people think he wasn't manly enough.

There was no doubt this young man was growing up too. But it seemed he was somewhat concerned about what he would do when he left the house. He didn't want to go back to his old friends, the ones he'd gotten in trouble with. That could lead to the same old problem over again. But how would he relate to straight people who hadn't had the experiences he'd been through? What would they talk about or do together?

There are certainly no general conclusions to be drawn about the drug problem from these talks with just two young men. But the fact that both came from very different family situations and viewed their own reasons for turning to drugs in very different ways is a suggestion of the complexity of this "disease" and a reason it has been so difficult to eradicate.

The difference between a brain and a computer can be expressed in a single word: complexity. The large mammalian brain is the most complicated thing, for its size, known to us. The human brain weighs three pounds, but in that three pounds are ten billion neurons and a hundred billion smaller cells. Even the most complicated computer man has yet built can't compare in intricacy with the brain. Can a computer think? That depends on what you mean by "think." If solving a mathematical problem is "thinking," then a computer can "think" and do so much faster than a man. But how long will it take to build a computer complex enough to duplicate the human brain? Perhaps not as long as some thing!

Sikeston High School Has Successful Scrap Drive

50 Years Ago
October 19, 1922

Mrs. O'Kelley of Springfield, who visited Mrs. E. J. Mouser the latter part of last week, returned to her home Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Duke of St. Louis are expected to arrive Saturday for a few days visit with Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Stone.

The Sikeston High School football team will play the Cape Girardeau Central High School team on the Sikeston field Friday afternoon. Sikeston has played and won two games this season.

Mrs. Dora Souvers returned Monday from an extended visit in St. Louis.

40 Years Ago
October 19, 1932

Miss Virginia Brown, Charleston High School student, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Brown, was brought to the emergency Hospital here Sunday suffering from a broken jaw sustained in an automobile wreck north of Charleston earlier that evening. Miss Goldie Edwards, another member of the party, was removed to St. mary's Infirmary, Cairo, having sustained a broken nose and other injuries.

Malone Theatre, today, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in "Love Is A Racket." Tomorrow, "Kongo" with Walter Huston, Lupe Velez, Conrad Nagel and Virginia Bruce.

A slashing, fighting charging Bulldog eleven Friday thoroughly aroused, gave its followers an exhibition of football rare in the last four year record of Sikeston football. They played the Dexter Bearcats and won 25 to 0 on the Dexter gridiron.

"Smoky" Sutton crashed the front page of the sports section on the Kansas City Star with his remarkable performance last Friday when Central College of Fayette, defeated William Jewell 12 to 0. Sikeston's hero led the attack in the second quarter from Jewell's 42-yard line, or to use the Star's own language, "Sutton carried the ball on every other play depositing it finally on the two-yard line from where one of this team mates carried to over". He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jake Sutton.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

Ye are all the children of light, and the children of day: we are not of the night, nor of the darkness. (I Thessalonians 5:5)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, accept our gratitude for sharing with us Your own nature as revealed to us in Your Son Jesus. Grant that all we do may reflect His light in our lives. Help us as we try to live in the faith and hope expressed in the prayer Jesus taught us: "Our Father who are in heaven ... Amen."

The Case Of The Constant Victim

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Looey was a taxi driver with a predilection for accidents. If he had one while sound asleep in bed, it would have surprised no one, not even his nervous boss. But the funny thing about it, the accidents were never Looey's fault. Yet he'd end up right smack in the middle of them. And while he always had presence of mind, absence of body would have been better since he never missed getting hurt.

The result? Looey's boss finally fired him.

"You're a great guy," his boss told him. "You're hard working, you're bright and you don't goof off. But it just can't go on. With your knack for getting into accidents, one day you're going to get killed and I'm going to lose my business.

Trudging over to the unemployment bureau with a heavy heart, Looey reluctantly applied for unemployment benefits.

"Sorry, Mac," he was told. "But you were fired. Anyone who's fired for cause isn't entitled to unemployment benefits.'.

"I wasn't fired because I didn't do my job," protested Looey. "I was bounced so that my boss could have some peace of mind. He worried about me. He also worried about having to maintain a charge account for me at all the local hospitals."

Denied benefits, Looey took his claim to court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit accident prone Looey to collect unemployment benefits?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a person is not disqualified from receiving unemployment benefits unless he is unemployed due to willfulness or misconduct, which does not include carelessness. In this case, concluded the judge, Looey was fired because he was accident prone and not because of any willful act of misconduct on his part.

Urges Safety Measures

JEFFERSON CITY — Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, urges motorists to turn on their headlights at dusk for added safety.

"The hours of dusk create visibility hazards to drivers," Hockaday pointed out. "Sharp line and color contrasts which make objects readily visible in the daytime are not easily seen at dusk. Studies have shown that cars with headlights on are seen better not only at dusk but even during the hours of daylight.

"I urge drivers to turn on their low beam headlights during the hours of dusk so that other drivers can be more aware of their presence on the highway."

The patrol superintendent stated that it doesn't cost anymore to operate a vehicle by having its headlights turned on at dusk or any other time. He also pointed out that parking lights do little good in helping a car to be seen moving down a highway. Headlights, not parking lights, should be used at twilight.

"The shorter hours of daylight during this time of the year will catch many motorists on the road at dusk," Hockaday continued. "I urge them to turn their headlights on low beam so they can better be seen by others and thus add to their own safety during this period."

Blind St. Louisan Is TV Newscaster

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Some daytime television viewers in St. Louis have been wondering why the news anchorman on KPLR-TV wears sunglasses during his three daily newscasts.

Those bold enough to call the station are told that anchorman John Weidlich is blind.

"They want to know if he's some kind of weirdo," says News Director Bill Addison. "When we tell them John is blind, the reaction is good."

Weidlich, 26, joined the station in February as a news writer, editor and coassignment editor, and his goal was to become an on-the-air newscaster.

He got his chance in September when the station inaugurated a 2½-hour varietytalk show in the morning and he now has three five-minute news shows each morning.

"This all happened a lot faster than I ever thought it would, and I'm awfully grateful that the station was willing to take a chance with me," said Weidlich, who holds two degrees in English from St. Louis University, as well as a Phi Beta Kappa key.

"it was a chance, first, because I've never done on-theair work before, so there's a certain lack of experience. And second, of course, is taking the chance on the unfamiliar concept of a blind newscaster," he said.

General Manager Jim Herd says he doesn't feel the station has taken any chances by using Weidlich on the air. "His performance ever since he joined our station has been phenomenal," Herd said.

The only special procedure for Weidlich's newscasts is that two separate sets of stories are assembled—one in braille for Weidlich and another in regular type for the producer. The station also uses a finger-snap cue rather than the traditional hand wave to signal that he is on the air.

Weidlich also makes telephone calls to police departments in the St. Louis area to keep up-to-date on the latest happeneings and takes reports from the station's other newsmen in the field by radio phone.

He takes the information on his braille writer and then transcribes it on a typewriter into scripts for use on news programs.

Weidlich says an obvious handicap in his work is that he is unable to read news wire copy or stories written by other newsmen, but the station is going to solve that problem soon.

Addison says his station is getting a device which reads printed material on paper and transorms it into raised letters which a blind person can feel with the tips of his fingers.

Weidlich spent 13 years as a child at the St. Louis School for the Blind, and he learned more than reading, writing and arithmetic while he was there.

Among other things, he learned to play the piano and now heads a three-man blind band, which occasionally plays at dances and weddings. The combo is called the "Soul Seers," a name picked up from a plaque at the school which says: "It is the soul that sees."

Weidlich was prepared to be a teacher when he left St. Louis University, but instead tried for a job in television.

"There are some professions that the blind are supposed to go into," he said in explaining his decision. "There's a campaign to get blind people to go to college, but there are many professions closed to the blind. This field was a challenge, and there was someone to give me a chance.

Indians Hope To Settle Accounts Of Broken Treaties

By RICHARD J. OLIVE
Associated Press Writer

Three auto carvans are midway along the "Trail of Broken Treaties" to Washington, where they hope thousands of American Indians will assemble to demand a settling of accounts by the federal government.

Brainchild of the American Indian Movement (AIM), the demonstration includes a call for President Nixon and Sen. George McGovern to meet with the Indians between Nov. 1 and7 "and expound upon their psotions affecting the Native American People."

AIM says it expects "100,000 Indians from every state in the union will converge on the white House." It feels this could be the prophetic "time when all the Indian nations would come together ... in a common new awakening."

The hope discussed at Denver Oct. 1-2 when the dramatization was planned by 40 to 50 persons was that Indians would join the caravans, "whether they be living in abandoned cars, tarpaper shacks or on the streets."

Nearly two weeks after beginning the journey from Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle, the caravans number about 200 persons.

AIM chapters at cities along the routes were directed to make arrangements for rallies so the travelers could explain their action.

At Wichita, Kan., Tuesday, Vernon Bellecourt, Denver AIM director, and others in the caravan of 12 cars were greeted by some 45 students and local Indians.

Bellecourt told the small assembly at Wichita State University if 371 treaties were enforced, there would be some drastic changes for the Indian.

For example, he said, Phoenix, Ariz., was built completely on "stolen Pima Indian land, which they have never been paid for." Then Bellecourt and the caravan set out on a threehour ride to Lawrence, Kan., hoping for better support there because of the presence of Haskell Indian Junior College.

Further north, the San Francisco and Seattle contingents met at the Sioux reservation at Pine Ridge, S.D., then moved on to Wounded Knee, S.D., for religious ceremonies Tuesday night.

Their guiding light is the preamble penned at Denver.

"We, the Native People of this hemisphere" is the phrase introducing seven demands. They include a call for "congressional legislation that will remove Indian affairs from the natural resource Department of the Interior and establish a Federal Indian Commission responsible directly to the President.

"We urge that within the provisions of this new legislation full consideration be given to the proposals submitted by the Indian leadership ... "

The group also wants the government to fulfill its treaty obligations, place Indians on an equitable level with the "everyincreasing affluent society," and grant education opportunities emphasizing professional fields.

A spokesman at AIM headquarters in Washington said caravans will start later in the month from Winnipeg, Montreal and Ottawa in Canada, where the effort has drawn the endorsement of the 250,000member National Indian Brotherhood.

Other caravans are to leave from Los Angeles, San Francisco and Portland, Ore., he said.

The first three caravans, which had stops scheduled at 75 cities, have encountered "a lot of people who want to go, but can't leave their jobs or school now and will catch up in Washington," the spokesman said.

All of the caravans, except those from Ottawa and Montreal, are expected to be represented at AIM's convention at Minneapolis, beginning Sunday.

Isn't the estimate of 100,000 Indians rallying in Washington optimistic?

Dowd Now Against Lottery

ST. LOUIS — Edward L. Dowd, Democratic candidate for Governor, told Missouri Press Association that he has resolved the question about the state lottery, and is now convinced that the state government should not be supported by a lottery or any other form of legalized gambling.

"I have seriously considered all pros and cons concerning a state lottery and have concluded that the negative aspects definitely outweigh the positive," Dowd explained.

"Gambling in any form is not a proper way to support a government," Dowd continued, "because it encourages organized crime to enter Missouri and takes money from those who can afford it least. Our state government, after reorganization, can be adequately financed through present sources and federal revenue sharing."

Dowd expressed total opposition to adding a sales tax on gasoline as an answer to our revenue problems. "Bond's tax on gasoline," he said, "would hit the family budgets of people of poor and moderate means who are already shouldering a heavy tax burden."

"Operating an automobile today is a necessity for most Missourians in going to and from work," Dowd concluded. "To further tax the operation of automobiles is grossly unfair and unnecessary for the operation of the programs Missouri needs."
